Navy in Grim Fight to Save Men in Sunken Submarine

UNABLE TO PUMP AIR IN BROKEN SHIP

Pontoons on Way to Scene Of Disaster; Will Try To Buoy Hull of Vessel

BATTLE AGAINST TIME

Six of Crew Known to Be Alive; Remainder of 40 Aboard Feared Dead

BULLETIN
NEW LONDON, Dec. 19.—There still was life aboard the sunken submarine S-4 at 2 p. m., today, Rear Admiral Brumby, in charge of salvage operations, reported by radio this afternoon.
He sent a message to the chief of operations at Washington and to the commander of the U. S. fleet reading: "Still in communication with S-4 at 2 p. m."

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 19.—The U. S. navy, striving to save the six men who still are alive in the torpedo room of the sunken submarine S-4, fought a grim, disheartening fight today against the seas off Provincetown harbor.

The condition of the wreck made unavailing attempts to lighten the sunken ship by pumping it full of air.

The same conditions prevented air being pumped into the torpedo room to supplement the fast thinning supply the six men there may have.

Race Against Death
The navy turned then to more orthodox methods of floating the ship—the methods which entail sinking air filled pontoons around the vessel's hull to buoy it—and there began a race from Brooklyn, N. Y., by two naval tugs towing three pontoons each.

If they could get there by afternoon there still would be a chance. The tug Mojave arrived during the morning with additional tackle

MAGRUDER CITES STEPS NEEDED TO ELIMINATE 'WASTE' IN NAVY

Abolition of Ship Yards in East Is Urged

Discontinuance of Overlapping Bureaus Is Advocated

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Specific recommendations to correct waste and inefficiency in the navy department were presented today by Rear Admiral Thomas P. Magruder, to the house naval affairs committee.

He urged:
1.—Abolition of Atlantic coast navy yards except at Boston, Philadelphia and Hampton Roads, thereby saving $485,000 a year.
2.—Discontinuance of the cruisers Pittsburgh, Rochester, Cleveland, Galveston and Tulsa, which he said are unfit for a war emergency.

3.—Elimination of several overlapping bureaus in the navy department.
4.—Transfer of hospitals at navy yards to the veterans' bureau.
5.—Abolition of training stations except at Hampton Roads and San Diego.

It cost the navy, he said, $8000 each to give 15 officers three months' training at the naval medical school. There is a medical officer for every three men sick, he said.

"We don't have enough medical officers in Nicaragua," he said. Magruder urged that Hampton

DECLARES HEARST IS WITHOUT HONOR

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Senator George Norris, Republican, Nebraska, issued an open letter today declaring an analysis of William Randolph Hearst's recent Mexican expose articles and his subsequent Senate committee testimony "led to the inevitable conclusion that you are not only unfair and dishonest, but that you are entirely without honor."
Hearst newspapers recently published documents purporting to show among other things a plot of President Calles of Mexico to bribe four United States Senators. This led to a Senate investigation which today was in recess, pending investigations by detectives into authenticity of the documents.

Three Children Burned To Death

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., Dec. 19.—Three children of Floyd N. Conine were burned to death today when fire swept Conine's home. Conine and the children's grandmother, Mrs. Mary Crain, were dangerously injured in the fire.

WILL ROGERS' HAT HEAVED IN RING OF SENATE CANDIDATES

Stole 50 Cents Worth Of Coal; Jailed

FALLS CITY, Neb., Dec. 19.—Theft of 50 cents worth of coal from the Missouri Pacific Railroad company was traced to F. W. Kuhlman, wealthy retired farmer, and he spent 24 hours in jail when arrested with the coal in his automobile. He was released on $100 cash bail.
Kuhlman, who was arrested two years ago on a charge of stealing merchandise, could not explain the theft. His wife said they had six tons of coal in their basement.

MOTHER FLYING TO MEXICO CITY TO JOIN LINDY

Mrs. Lindbergh Expected To Reach Goal Wednesday or Thursday

(By United Press)
DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 19.—Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh soared away from the Ford airport at 10:15 a. m., today, for Mexico City, where she will spend the Christmas holidays with her famous flying son, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, as a guest of the government of Mexico.

Mrs. Lindbergh Lunches In Indianapolis

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 19.—Mrs. Evangeline Lodge Lindbergh, flying from Detroit to Mexico City to join her son, varied her schedule today by pausing in Indianapolis for lunch. Her airplane settled down at the Mars Hill airport at 12:18 p. m.

HEARING ON DAM SET FOR JAN. 7

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The senate committee on irrigation today set January 7 for a hearing on pending Boulder dam legislation. Senator Ashurst, Democrat, Arizona, requested that a delegation from Arizona, headed by Gov. Hunt, be allowed to present its side of the question then.

State Treasurer Johnson Supports Comedian For U. S. Post

BY CLEM WHITAKER
Staff Correspondent, Santa Ana Register

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 19.—Will Rogers, one-time lariat-twister in the wide-open spaces, humorist, satirist, erstwhile mayor of Beverly Hills and one of America's leading ambassadors-at-large, today was "nominated" as a candidate for the U. S. senate from California.

Rogers' sombrero was hurled into the senatorial arena by State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson, acting he said, in behalf of a group of the film comedian's friends in northern California.

The roving humorist, with all his satire and fun making, is a serious, intellectual man "under the skin," declared the state treasurer, and the proposal that he become a candidate for senator in California next year "was made in all seriousness."

State Treasurer Johnson, himself, "a self-made man and a great admirer of the ambassador extraordinary," announced he would confer with Rogers and offer to handle his northern California campaign when the screen comedian returns from Mexico City.

In a telegram to Rogers today, the state treasurer said: "Your friends in northern California seriously propose you be candidate for U. S. senate. Will personally assist management your campaign. Please don't act hastily in reply but give matter sound and

CORN CROP VALUED AT $2,014,725,000

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The agriculture department today announced the total corn production for 1927 at 2,786,288,000 bushels, compared with 2,692,217,000 bushels last year.
The total value of the 1927 crop was placed at $2,014,725,000, based on December 1 prices of corn, compared with $1,729,457,000 for the 1926 crop.
The cotton production was estimated at 12,798,000 bales, compared with 17,977,000 bales of 1926. The total value of the cotton crop, based on December 1 farm prices was estimated at $1,253,599,000, compared with $982,736,000 for 1926.

Russian Agencies In China Raided

SHANGHAI, Dec. 19.—Chinese police today raided the Russian consulate, the Russian Mercantile Fleet agency and various Russian commercial agencies in search of Communist propaganda. No arrests were made, police said.

Smith Plane Still in Air On Time Hop

(By United Press)
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 19.—Nearly five hours past the half way mark in the attempt to shatter the endurance flight record, the "Spirit of California" continued this afternoon to throb its way over northern and central California.

At 2:25 p. m., the giant Fokker plane, piloted by Capt. Charles Kingsford-Smith and Lt. George R. Pond had been in the air for 30 hours since taking off yesterday from the Mills field airport.

During that time it is estimated the craft has flown a distance well over 2200 miles.

ORANGE COUNTY POLICE SEARCH FOR MURDERER

Peace Officers in Every Community on Lookout For Master Fiend

Shocked by the brutal murder of little Marion Parker in Los Angeles, and incensed at the arch criminal who committed the crime, Orange county's police officers and citizenry have taken up the man hunt as enthusiastically as the people of Los Angeles county and every effort is being made to trap the slayer should he enter the confines of this county.

The man hunt here, led chiefly by Sam Jernigan, sheriff, and by police chiefs in every city and hamlet in the county, covered every foot of ground in this county Saturday night, yesterday and last night.

Officers, armed with sawed off shot guns guarded every road, stopping all cars that even resembled the murderer's machine. Three men were arrested by sheriffs' officers and quizzed, all to be turned loose after making perfect alibis.

Report Erroneous

PASS JAMES BILL

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The house today passed the James bill appropriating $200,000 for construction of the Pacific branch of the soldiers home, Los Angeles, Calif.

Girl and Four Men Jailed in Kidnap Hunt

Blood Stains, Razor Blades Found in House Near Where Body Found

(By United Press)
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—Among the most important of the suspects detained by police in their search for the murderer of Marion Parker, were:
Lillian Padley, 22, taken into custody as she ran through the streets at Fifth and Manhattan place, where a portion of the murdered child's body had been delivered to her father, shouting, "I didn't kill her! I didn't kill her. They did it." Believing her drunk, nothing was thought of her actions until the arrest of William Long.

Bloody Heel Marks
William Long was found in a Manhattan place house, only a few doors from where the portion of the child's body was given to the father. Volunteer searchers, seeing a suspicious car in the rear of the house, entered and found five bloody heel marks of a man on the floor. In a corner were razor blades, stained by blood or rust. Long, frightened, said he lived alone and admitted he did not know where to find his landlady, a Mrs. Parker. He declared he knew nothing of the car which had been seen.

Earl Smith, 22, son of a dentist,

FIVE JAILED AS SUSPECTS IN BRUTAL AND FIENDISH MURDER OF MARION PARKER

Bloody Towels, Razor Blades and Footprints Give Latest Clues to Los Angeles Butcher

FRIEND OF FAMILY ARRESTED

BULLETIN
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—A widely circulated rumor late today gave rise to the report that the slayer of 12-year-old Marion Parker had been captured in San Diego and taken upon a battleship for safe-keeping. This report could not be confirmed by the United Press. It was said that the suspect was attempting to cross the international boundary line and that all but two of the 75 $20 gold certificates which were turned over to him as ransom were found on his person.

By DAN CAMPBELL
United Press Staff Correspondent

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—Out of the maze of intricate and complex clues surrounding the frightful butchery of 12-year-old Marion Parker, one fact alone remained unchanged today—the arch-fiend "Fox" still is free.

And while Los Angeles, city of ghastly and bizarre crimes, struggled against maddening impulses that followed the first stunned realization of the magnitude of the crime, a weary

EVENTS LEADING TO AND DEVELOPMENTS IN MARION PARKER MURDER-ABDUCTION

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—Events which led up to the kidnaping, mutilation and murder of 12-year-old Marion Parker and subsequent developments from the gigantic manhunt now in progress are as follows:

At approximately 8:30 on the morning of Thursday, December 15, Marion and Marjorie Parker, twin daughters of a Los Angeles bank official, left home for school. Enroute a stranger in a coupe attempted to entice them from a street car.

During the noon recess at the Mount Vernon junior high school on the same day a man entered the school building and informed a teacher that Perry M. Parker was hurt in an auto crash and that he wanted to see his daughter, Marion. The child left with the man.

That afternoon Parker received a telegram filed in Pasadena at 2:40 p. m., which read: "Do positively nothing till you receive the special delivery letter." It was signed "Marion Parker" and "George Fox."

About 7 o'clock Thursday evening another telegram, filed in Alhambra, was received by the father, who meanwhile had notified police. The second message read: "Marion secure. Use good judgment. Interference with my plans dangerous." It was signed the same as the first.

Get Special Delivery
On Friday a special delivery letter was received at the Parker home. The postmark indicated it had been mailed at 6 o'clock Thursday night. The letter was marked at the top with the word "death" in Greek letters. The missive gave Parker 72 hours in which to turn over $1500 ransom.

The same day another letter was received, in the child's handwriting, which made a pitiful plea that aid be sent her, saying, "I

DROWNED BOY MAY BE REDLANDS LAD

BOULDER, Colo., Dec. 19.—Lauren Blackmer, 18, freshman at the University of Colorado, and son of Dr. L. G. Blackmer, of Hookitt's, officers and quizzed, all to be turned loose after making perfect alibis.

Blackmer and Harvey Cox, 19, another student, were walking on the ice when Cox saw it suddenly give way and precipitate his chum into the water. He ran to the Dalmont plant of the Colorado Public Service company, for aid but Blackmer had disappeared.

Cox collapsed from shock and was taken to a hospital. His home is believed to be in Redlands, Calif.
Blackmer's body was recovered at noon.

WE THANK YOU

Editor Register: The first edition of The Sunday Register was complete in every detail and was a credit to the management and to the city. In some respects it excelled even the Sunday editions of the Los Angeles papers. It was a wonderful publication, and demonstrated fully the facilities of The Register for handling a big edition. It, perhaps, is a little in advance of Santa Ana, but it will have its influence in hastening the time when Santa Ana will attain distinction as a metropolis.

Personally, I was delighted with the issue, and if the first issue is a sample of what is to follow, Santa Ana will have a Sunday paper of which its residents may be justly proud—and every possible support should be given the management by subscribers and advertisers.

J. C. LANDSOWNE,
Manager J. C. Penny Co.

Editor Register: It gave me great pride to read the first issue of the Sunday edition of The Register. Your comic sheet was good. Your sport sheet, I thought, first class and compared favorably with the Los Angeles Sunday papers. The automobile section certainly gave the reader a great deal of information, valuable and interesting.

As a whole I am sure that this step in the progress of The Register is one that will be greatly appreciated by the subscribers and will be appreciated more and more as they become accustomed to reading it.

F. L. PURINTON,

Editor Register: I was agreeably surprised by the quantity and quality of the Sunday Register. It was a whole of a paper.

Naturally, I looked at it from the standpoint of a publisher, I know what it represented in work and expense, and it meant so much of both that it richly deserves, and no doubt, will receive, the appreciation and adequate support of both readers and advertisers.

as to make it unnecessary for any of its readers to subscribe for any Los Angeles paper. The Sunday Register is a long step in that direction.

The more thoroughly the Register field is protected against invasion or domination by the metropolitan papers, the more fully will be developed and maintained that civic pride and ambition, that community consciousness and loyalty so necessary to both material and moral welfare.

With congratulations and best wishes,

J. P. BAUMGARTNER.

Editor Register—I take genuine pleasure in expressing my views of the new Sunday edition of The Santa Ana Register. The first edition was indeed a pleasant surprise and J. F. Burke, the editor, is to be complimented upon anticipating the requirements of the city and county to the extent of developing a newspaper such as the first Sunday edition proved to be.

I consider this innovation a most important development in the newspaper field in Orange county and its continued publication will place Santa Ana in the rank of metropolitan cities.

E. B. COLLIER.

Editor Register: If you didn't burst a few buttons in the vicinity of your chest last Saturday as you progressed through the various news and feature sections of the new Sunday Register, then you were overlooked when they were passing out Santa Ana complexes and it's just too bad.

The only difference between the Sunday Register and a Los Angeles, Chicago or New York newspaper, is a few hundred thousand circulation. But if The Register keeps on like it has the past few years, it will be able to bring in enough new subscribers to Orange county to overcome that deficiency.

WE THANK YOU

The Register represents the city we would like Santa Ana to be. It suggests our metropolis and all we need to make it a reality is to admit and be always conscious of our own individuality.

Congratulations, Register. Your progress is good for my business, and so it must be for everybody else's.

L. R. CRAWFORD.

Editor Register: A copy of your new Sunday paper was handed to me at my desk Saturday evening, just at the close of a very busy day. I was tired and ordinarily a newspaper would not have interested me just at that time, but being eager to see what its pages contained I immediately proceeded to learn its contents, and believe me, folks, it was a real tonic to me.

Its pages contained something of interest to everyone. Its news items, both foreign and local, the society and sports section, real estate and industry, even the funny page for the kiddies; pages of good honest advertising!

Folks, its all there 100 per cent. In fact, I have not a criticism to offer. Santa Ana is gradually donning her metropolitan togs and our new Sunday edition of The Register is certainly one of them.

CLAUDE H. VAN ANTWERP.

Editor Register: When the Register changed ownership last summer, I made the prediction that within a few months the new owners would begin the publication of a Sunday paper for Santa Ana and Orange county—and now the first issue is off the press and has been commented upon in every home.

Sixty-eight pages! That is, without doubt, the largest paper ever printed in Orange county, or perhaps, in any other city the size of Santa Ana in the United States.

You have covered the field so well and so thoroughly that little or nothing else could be added—and what is more, you have made the publication of intense interest to every man, woman and child in every home, scoring a distinct triumph in journalism, and winning for you the continued good will and united support of all patrons.

Subscribers not only will be glad to pay the small extra charge for subscription, but, if necessary, will be willing to pay even more.

Being a public institution, everybody is interested in the welfare of the city daily and its every forward movement. It's a well known saying that a city is judged by its press, and in this respect the people of Santa Ana have been, and always will be, proud of its progressive daily.

J. ALBERT DENNIS,

Editor Register: I consider it a privilege to extend praise and commendation to the management and staff of The Register for its Saturday evening metropolitan issue. I would reflect credit upon a city many times the size of our own. It brought to our door international, national and local news in a well-balanced form and the literary product of some of our finest modern writers and thinkers, and merits the hearty support not only of Santa Ana but the whole of Orange county.

The thread of local unity and co-operation is woven throughout the whole fabric of the paper and should awaken us to greater and better development of our city and community.

Santa Ana is to be congratulated in having as residents, property owners and boosters, such men as the new owners of The Register.

CLYDE C. DOWNING.

Editor Register: The pathway of progress in newspaper building in Southern California has always been brilliantly illuminated by the march of the Santa Ana Register, and the quality of achievement shown in the first Sunday edition of The Register is a milestone in a career of many milestones.

It is the final metropolitan touch that gives us a finished product that we can be extremely proud of. Cities of far greater urban pretensions than Santa Ana cannot approach it in journalistic history. And the new Sunday edition will greatly enhance a national reputation for having the finest newspaper in a city of its size in the country.

Santa Ana will benefit by The Register's progress in the outside world, as well as through its local service. We are glad to be able to reach this satisfactory point in what is an important development in Santa Ana's growth.

J. C. HORTON.

Editor Register: I looked over the first Sunday edition of The Register with great pleasure and pride and I am sure it will be appreciated by the people of Orange county very much. It is worthy of any city and is a forward step that visions a great future for our wonderful community.

I feel that to ask a paper to continue such a fine edition we must all give it our loyal and hearty support, for without a deep appreciation from the public it cannot be carried on to success.

No cause has ever been successful without it was backed by moral sentiment, and The Register always has been true to the creation and cultivation of a fine healthy moral sentiment.

The enlarged edition will afford opportunity for many fine articles that will be educational and a benefit to the public in general. I congratulate you and wish you unlimited success.

DR. F. T. PORTER.

Editor Register: The Register deserves hearty commendation upon its first issue of the new Sunday edition. In appearance and in reader interest. The edition compares favorably with the metropolitan dailies and contains an abundance of what we have always missed in the Los Angeles papers, local news.

There can be no question, if this standard can be maintained, that the Sunday Register can supply a need and win a place of merit in Orange county. By a visitor in our midst, Santa Ana is judged by her appearance and her advantages; but in the mind of a stranger at a distance it is the newspaper that creates an impression. For this reason, Santa Ana ought to be proud to have The Register as her representative. And the new Sunday edition is one big step forward towards putting the paper and our city in the metropolitan class.

H. P. RANKIN.

Editor Register: The first issue of the Santa Ana Sunday Register was delivered to my address at an early hour Saturday evening and, like previous undertakings of The Register, this new feature paper looks like it would be a success. I was really surprised at its size and general appearance.

Personally, I do not care to spend much time on Sunday reading any newspaper, as other reading and other interests appeal to me more, and I am, for that reason, very glad to have my Sunday Register delivered so that it can be disposed of on Saturday night.

With congratulations and all good wishes for the Sunday Register, as well as for the future welfare of the entire paper, I am,

Very truly yours,

O. H. BARR.

Editor Register: The first Sunday edition of your valuable paper was received at my home Saturday evening, at which time all labors were abandoned and for two hours, I devoted time in going over the paper from cover to cover. I was truly impressed with the four large sections containing subjects of interest of national and international importance as well as state, county-wide and local.

The society section is truly a splendid compendium on the social activities of our city and country. Anyone reading same would be impressed with the social life of this territory.

The automotive section is indeed a knockout. Much interesting data is contained therein with reference to the various makes of cars and the place they occupy in the automotive world.

The magazine section, which is an innovation in our local newspaper annals, is a splendid addition to The Register, and I am persuaded that it will be appreciated by many readers.

On the whole, The Register's Sunday Edition is truly an innovation. It places your paper in the forefront of newspaper journalism of Southern California, outside of the city of Los Angeles. Too much praise and commendation cannot be extended to you, the editor, for thus broadening The Register's sphere of usefulness in our city and county development program.

In all of the community development achievements of the future, the writer is persuaded that The Santa Ana Register will occupy very important position.

GEO. RAYMER.

KIDNAPER AND MURDERER OF 12-YEAR-OLD MARION PARKER STILL FREE; SUSPECTS HELD

eyed police force of more than 5000 men held five possible suspects.

The murder car that carried the remnants of the child's body back to her father Saturday night was located an hour following the meeting between the kidnaper and Perry M. Parker. It was located in a downtown auto parking station but was not seized until noon today. Officers have guarded it for two days.

The machine, a Chrysler, was stolen from Dr. H. L. Manz on November 7 in Kansas City, by a holdup man who took it at the point of a gun. The California license plate on the machine, number 1,677-679, was taken from a Chevrolet coupe on December 13, in San Diego. The car was owned by N. H. Eastman, 1727 Fern street, San Diego.

Police located the car about 9 o'clock Saturday night, just after a man, who answered the description of the kidnaper, had left it at the parking station. They immediately put a "stake out" on the car, but it never was reclaimed.

There was a set of fingerprints on it identical to those taken off the ransom letters. The stolen license plate on the rear, which Parker caught as the machine sped away from him, had been bent at both ends so that the numbers one and nine at the beginning and end of the plate were obscured.

The engine number of the machine, 92519, corresponded to that of the car stolen in the Kansas City holdup.

Parking station attendants declared that the man who left the car was about five feet, six inches tall, about 20 years old and was of slender build.

The finding of the car led police and by being out less than five minutes.

Pair Denies Implication Both Long and Mrs. Padley, the later a telephone operator, denied any implication in the kidnapping and murder.

Gaylord Barnaman, another suspect, was to be fingerprinted today and, if the murder count is dropped, will be charged with insanity, it was said.

Bloody heel prints beneath a window of the house was another hopeful clue of the frenzied night. As the officers entered the house Long came to the end of the stairway and demanded to know what was wanted. On being informed by the raiders that they were policemen, Long refused to answer questions.

Heel Prints in Blood Further examination of the house revealed about a half dozen prints of a man's rubber heel in blood close to the front windows, where it was possible to see the tragic spot.

A pair of recently washed men's athletic underwear with a blood spot larger than a dollar on the left side was hanging in a closet in an upstairs room. Two towels also were in the closet, one of which was spotted with a red substance believed to be blood.

Charges against Long, who said he is the father of Mrs. Padley, later were dropped. The woman is being held incommunicado in the county jail. She said she was a former Washington, D. C., telephone operator.

Fingerprint Expert H. L. Barlow was engaged today in making a minute examination of several unique French drawings found hidden in a closet on the frames of which excellent fingerprint reproductions were found.

Refers to "Judas" A linking factor between the pictures and the mysterious "Fox" was seen in that Judas Iscariot, the betrayer, was portrayed in one of them. The "Fox" in one of his death letters, declared Parker would be a "Judas" if he failed to pay for his daughter's release.

The beginnings of the deluge of "prank tips" came with the arrest of Barnaman. Radio stations were called several times in the evening and a man believed to be Barnaman, who shouted, "I am the Fox," hung up.

Barnaman was arrested in a downtown hotel when detectives discovered him using a telephone with a clipping concerning the gruesome murder in his hand which he tried to conceal when they approached.

More than a dozen suspects were questioned during the night. One of them was detained on an anonymous telephone call which directed officers to go to a doctor's home to get the physician's son.

It later developed that the suspect was a medical student at present and had been previously employed in a bank of which Parker was vice president. Parker, the boy's father said, fired him more than a year ago.

Dentist Under Arrest Earl Smith, a dentist, arrested on suspicion of grand theft, later was questioned in connection with the school girl slaying when he failed to give a logical account of his activities. He also is in the city jail, held incommunicado.

Despite the night of frantic search, police officers and detectives plainly indicated they were baffled by the lack of orthodox crime methods employed by "The Fox."

With a gesture of astounding boldness, the butcherer flaunted his disdain of thousands of peace officers seeking him by posting a new death threat in a Hollywood fire alarm box shortly before midnight last night which cast a deeper shadow over the stricken family of Perry M. Parker, bank executive.

The note, in the same handwriting as those received prior to the murder of Marion, promised a similar fate for her twin sister, Marjorie, and in addition to the signature "The Fox," the envelope in which it was found was marked with the word "death," in Greek letters, as the other had been.

"Marjorie Next Victim" "For the trouble you have caused, Marjorie Parker will be the next victim," the note addressed to the father, which firemen found when answering an alarm to the box, read. "Nothing can stop 'The Fox' and those who try will know the penalty."

"If you warn anyone of this second success, it will mean your neck," said the missive which police believe without doubt was written by the fiend who mutilated the body of Marion.

"Try and get me. I am 'The Fox.' You shall never know the rest of this first success. You will miss Marjorie at 12 o'clock." The note was signed "The Fox."

The bottom part of the letter was torn off. Firemen who answered the alarm and found the note are believed to have lost the lower portion in the excitement that followed the discovery.

The police guard around the Parker home was immediately increased and as the murderer failed to specify the date on which he intended to carry out his new threat, it will be maintained until all danger is passed, police headquarters announced.

The most important events up until today are summarized as follows:

city was being combed for the slayer.

Police are making efforts to trace blood stained towels which were found stuffed in the torso of the victim where it had been severed at the waist. One towel bore the mark of a questionable apartment house, but failed to produce a workable clue.

Because of the manner in which the body was cut up it is believed that the man may have been a medical student or had knowledge of surgery. Police also are convinced that the murderer was a man of some education because of the handwriting and choice of language in the death missives.

Private Citizens Aid Hunt Thousands of private citizens joined in the colossal effort to trap the slayer as all radio stations broadcast his description and a reward being fathered by the radio stations continued to grow overnight until it is believed that it will reach more than $100,000, the largest sum ever placed upon the head of a criminal in the history of California.

Examination of the death letters by handwriting experts brought forth the announcement that they had been the collaboration of two persons, one evidently a woman. This bears out the theory that three persons are implicated in the murder, a woman and a middle aged man in addition to the youth who turned over the body.

Airplanes of the California National Guard were offered for use in the search. One plane went to Las Vegas, Nev., on a tip that resulted in the arrest there of Lewis D. Wyatt, who left Los Angeles yesterday morning enroute to St. Louis. His connection with the crime is doubtful, however, dispatches to the United Press said.

All Roads Patrolled Squads of motorcycle police are patrolling all roads within a radius that extends hundreds of miles north and south of the city. Police bulletins giving a description of the slayer have been dispatched by these squads to all nearby cities where the aid of peace officers has been enlisted.

Following his second death threat feeling in Southern California rose to a new high pitch of excitement. The canny fashion in which the slayer has thus far successfully carried out his threats has led to an eerie atmosphere in public gatherings in Los Angeles.

In street cars, theaters, restaurants and railroad stations individuals can be noted to glance about guardedly at the slightest sign of disturbance.

The city of Los Angeles can be truthfully said to be held in the grip of an overpowering terror that will not end until the arch-fiend has been captured.

Whether the child was mutilated before or after her death can not be determined until a further autopsical examination has been made.

A. F. Wagner, county autopsy surgeon, testified today at the coroner's inquest.

Dr. Wagner testified not only in his official capacity but also as an identification witness, having been a neighbor for four years.

"All I can tell now is that the child was brutally murdered and her body dismembered. She may have been poisoned before her death or she may have been mutilated before she was killed," Dr. Wagner testified.

"The entire body has been found now with the exception of a large portion of the intestines. There was not a drop of blood in the body, which makes determination of the cause of death more difficult."

Tears came to the eyes of the autopsy surgeon, who declared it to be one of the most horrible mutilation he has seen in his years of experience.

School Teacher Sobs "I should never have let her go if I had suspected anything," sobbed Mrs. Mary Holt, attendance teacher at the Mount Vernon junior high school, who gave the abductor permission to take Marjorie from school Thursday noon.

"He seemed so calm and so sincere I had no doubt at all that he was a friend of the family's," Mrs. Holt testified. "Neither I nor the other attendance teacher, Mrs. Britton, knew that the Parker girls were twins. Therefore we did not think it strange when he asked for the younger one."

Detective Lt. William W. Warn was the third and last witness called. He testified as to the events preceding and following the finding of the body Saturday night by the father. At the time of the actual meeting between Parker and the murderer, no police or private detectives accompanied the father at his special request.

Abductor Had Gun "I was at the house when the abductor phoned at 7:30. He told Mr. Parker to proceed in about five minutes to Fifth and Manhattan and to park there with his dimmers on. Parker did so. The man drove up in a small coupe, shoved what appeared to be a sawed-off shot gun at Parker and demanded the money," the detective testified.

When Parker asked for his daughter the kidnaper raised the child's head so a glimpse of the profile could be seen and the father said, "Why doesn't she speak to me?" "She is asleep, I'll let her out down the street," the abductor answered," Detective Warn said.

"Parker went down the street and picked up what remained of the child which the kidnaper had thrown into a gutter. At 10 minutes after 8 Mrs. Parker with the rest of the family and others of us who were waiting at the house were notified of the death."

Warn also told how Parker and

BANDITS KILL 1 SECURE $10,000

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 19—A bank messenger was killed and another wounded in a gun battle between bandits and bank messengers in two automobiles here today.

The bandits escaped with cash estimated at more than $10,000, which was being conveyed from the University City bank to the Hiramant bank at Wellston, Mo.

John Hobson was slain and Joseph McCool was injured when the bandits drew abreast of the bank car and opened fire with a machine gun.

An escort of police waited for four hours Friday night at Tenth and Gramercy streets to meet the abductor.

The verdict of the coroner jury said "Francis Marion Parker was brutally murdered in some manner and the body dismembered by a person or persons with homicidal intent."

BATTLE ANGRY SEAS TO SAVE TRAPPED MEN

and equipment.

The sea became too rough today for diving and depression settled on those aboard the half dozen rescue ships when the mine sweeper Falcon, carrying Rear Adm. Frank Bumby and the divers with their gear, was forced to leave the scene for Boston.

The Falcon carried L. S. Michael, a diver, first of the men who risked their lives in the rescue attempt to fall a victim to the sea.

Caught in Conning Tower
Michael had become caught in the wrecked conning tower of the S-4 while working on the air hose connection through which the Falcon was pumping air into the submarine's ballast tanks in an effort to start her toward the surface.

He was rescued by Thomas Eadie, another diver, who, although he had already spent hours under the chilly water and had been the first man to reach the S-4 and learn that life was aboard her, went down again to save his comrade.

Eadie brought Michael to the surface and it was found he was in a decided state of shock. The Falcon decided to take him to the naval hospital in Boston and then return.

With the departure of the Falcon, diving operations necessarily ceased while it was assumed from ashore that the U. S. S. Bushnell and the submarine S-3, which were standing by, would take up the work of pumping air.

50-Mile Gale
The weather was bitter cold and a 50-mile gale swept the rescue scene. Freezing spray coated the vessels and men with ice.

Conditions could not have been worse for rescue work, navy men said.

The divers sent down yesterday from the rescue boats riding the tossing water above the sunken submarine had communicated with the six men still living by tapping on the hull, and had learned that the air was becoming foul. It was doubtful if any of the others of the crew of 40 remained alive.

Thus, with adverse weather today, the navy's effort at rescue became a gallant but heart-breaking race against time, each precious minute that passed bringing nearer the time when the air in the S-4 would be too foul to sustain life.

A resolution proposing a congressional investigation of the disaster will be offered by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, if no one else offers one, he said.

"Something should be done," King said. "I am discouraged in efforts I have long been making to get a congressional investigation of the navy department."

Zero Hour Passes For Men On Sub
PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 19.—The zero hour for the six men imprisoned alive in the torpedo room of the sunken submarine S-4 passed at 3:37 p. m., today with chances of rescue increasingly remote.

Navy officers had estimated the six men could live 48 hours from the time of the sinking. The S-4 went down at 3:37 p. m., Saturday.

Rescue Work Precedes Any Investigation

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—The Coast Guard giving notice that it is ready to have the navy alone investigate the S-4 disaster, Adm. Hughes, chief of naval operations, stressed today that rescue work would precede any inquiry. He denied earlier reports that a board of inquiry had actually been ordered. Both Hughes and Secretary Wilbur said the disaster was as nearly unavoidable as such a thing could be.

No Lives Lost When Cutter Goes Aground

NEW LONDON, Conn., Dec. 19.—The Coast Guard Cutter Marion ran aground today and a motor sailer from the U. S. S. Chewink was lost in the surf. Life heroic efforts were being made to salvage a pontoon needed in the rescue operations at the scene of the sinking of the submarine S-4.

No lives were lost. The Marion, though leaking, was

DRAMATIC SCENES AT RADIO STATIONS REVEAL EMOTIONS OF CITY OVER GIRL SLAYING

Trapped Sailors Appeal For Oxygen and Food

BOSTON, Dec. 19.—An appeal for oxygen and rations from the men imprisoned in the S-4 was received by the submarine S-3 today, the Charlestown navy yard announced this afternoon.

Word of receipt of the latest message from the trapped seamen was wireless to the navy yard from the scene of the disaster.

The signal message, picked up by the submarine at 9:50 a. m., said:

"Oxygen bottle empty. Can you send down a couple? It may be possible for divers to place oxygen bottles, soda lime and emergency rations in a torpedo tube."

Wiley Summoned To Head Board of Inquiry

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Ad. H. A. Wiley, commander-in-chief of the U. S. fleet, left the Brooklyn navy yard today for Washington, where he has been summoned to head a board of inquiry into the sinking of the submarine S-4.

The communication which summoned Admiral Wiley, it was said, was a confidential one from Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and he would make no comment.

Bumby Orders Food Be Taken to Trapped Men

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 19.—Orders for divers to go down at the first opportunity to take food and water for the six men trapped in the hull of the sunken submarine S-4 today by Rear Admiral R. S. Brumby, in charge of operations.

The order was taken to mean that he had not given up hope and that he was considering some new plan to reach the imprisoned men.

think I'll die if I have to be like this much longer." The letter was mailed in Los Angeles, at 1 p. m., Friday.

Late that same night Parker received a telephone call from "The Fox" and made an appointment to meet the kidnaper and turn over the money. The kidnaper failed to put in his appearance, however, when Parker was followed by detectives in police cars.

Pathetic Plea From Child
The last word received from the child came in the form of another letter Saturday. It was a pathetic plea to the father to meet her captors alone.

Saturday another letter arrived in which "The Fox" revealed that he had knowledge of the police trap that had been set the night before. "Today is the last day," the fiend wrote. "If, by 8 p. m., you have not received my telephone call then hold a quiet funeral service at your cemetery without the body—on Sunday, the 18th. Only God knows where the body of Marion Parker would rest in this event. Not much effort is needed to take her life. She may pass out before 8 p. m., so I could not afford to call you and ask for your $1500 for a lifeless mass of flesh."

Another Phone Call
That night Parker received another telephone call and this time convinced police that he should make the trip alone. He demanded that he first be allowed to get his child before police made further efforts to capture the kidnaper. The father arrived at the designated spot, in a dark street. The kidnaper asked for the money and having received it said he would let the child out a short way down the street.

During this time the little girl sat propped up next to her murderer, her eyes held open in a life-like manner by plane wire. Driving a short distance down the street the murderer placed the body upon a lawn. The father hastened to his daughter and found that she was dead, only the head and torso of her body having been delivered by the fiend, who meanwhile had escaped.

Manhunt Gets Under Way
Late Saturday night the great manhunt in the history of California was under way, with more than 5000 regular and special police officers combing the city of Los Angeles.

Early Sunday morning the missing portions of the child's body were found wrapped in newspapers in five separate bundles in Elysian park.

The colloquial police dragnet began to function about noon Sunday and hundreds of suspects were being dragged into detective headquarters for questioning. Sunday night another death warning was received from "The Fox," who used the ingenious method of placing the letter in a Hollywood fire alarm box and turning in an alarm. The note, found by firemen, promised death for Marion's twin sister.

Half Dozen Suspects
Early Monday morning police had a half dozen likely suspects held incommunicado in the city jail. All were held on circumstantial evidence, however.

Radio stations, which had been broadcasting the description of the murderer all night Saturday and Sunday, had collected contributions to a reward that was expected to total more than $100,000.

Chemical analysis of the vital organs of the child is being made to determine whether she was drugged or poisoned.

serious thought. (Signed) Charles G. Johnson, state treasurer.

Because of his wit and his fame as an "unofficial diplomat," Rogers, if he consented to run, would be assured of capacity crowds in every section of the state during his campaign, asserted Treasurer Johnson.

"And his hearers would quickly learn what Rogers' close friends already know," said Johnson, "that he is a close student of human nature and public affairs—a satirist, to be sure, but a man of unusual ability, who would command respect in any capacity."

Here is Treasurer Johnson's formal statement urging Rogers' candidacy:

"Splendid Candidate"
"Mr. Will Rogers will make a splendid candidate for U. S. senator from California and I would be pleased to support him. He has a clear mind and has demonstrated that he knows how to use it. There are sufficient lawyers in the senate to make the public take heed of Benjamin Franklin's warning.

"Mr. Rogers, by his satirical sense of humor, has proven his intellectual understanding of politics and the serious application of his talents to government would give California able and honest representation. He is a man of sound and serious judgment, with a sense of humor admired by the American public. Anyone who underestimates his ability does not know his character.

"The election of Rogers would give Southern California the territorial recognition it has so long contended for. Senator Will Rogers would command respect in Washington and be a powerful influence in the interest of California."

number of $20 bills was found on his person, gave rumor that the criminal had been caught. The report was without foundation in any detail, according to an investigation made by the sheriff's office.

Chief of Police Rogers and his men worked throughout the weekend. Restaurants throughout the city were given the numbers of the $20 bills paid by Parker as ransom money and every restaurant man, every grocer, together with proprietors of all stores that were open, asked to watch for the bills that undoubtedly would lead to the arrest of the field.

The numbers are K48015901 to K 68015975, a total of $1500.

All state officers here took the road early and were working when orders came from Sacramento to Captain Henry Moeham ordering the officers to guard all roads.

Every service station in the county was checked and warned to be on the lookout.

Jernigan Shocked
Sam Jernigan, in Los Angeles Saturday night, directed his men in the search by telephone. He viewed the body of the girl, was made sick, together with other veterans of the police service and orders were sent out to officers here to "shoot and shoot to kill" if the man was found. Never in the history of crime in Southern California, said Jernigan, has the police departments of this section of the state been so incensed over a murder, or have officers been more determined to find their man.

All constables in the county, all deputy sheriffs, paid and special, together with volunteers from Santa Ana and other Orange county towns aided in the search.

B. A. Hershey, city motorcycle officer dashed into Santa Ana canyon yesterday afternoon to arrest a man, reported to resemble the murderer. He found a milk dealer and after questioning him, allowed him to go his way.

Scores of citizens rang the telephone bells at the sheriff's office and at police station here, asking what they could do to aid in the hunt. Many of them reported leads which were run down by officers but which led nowhere.

Follow Ups
"We are not overlooking any lead at all. Every tip is being followed," Jernigan said.

Sheriffs officers here printed their own circulars, giving descriptions of the criminal, Saturday night, and saw that they were distributed to every eating place in the county and to every service station.

KWTC, the Santa Ana radio broadcast station broadcast the numbers of the ransom $20 bills, every 30 minutes Saturday night asking that all persons who handle money watch for these numbers and should any person appear with one of the bills to hold him or get a good description of him, then call the nearest police station.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—A weary-eyed mother toiled in the kitchen of her grief-torn home here today, broken by the tragic death of her daughter, but mercifully spared the terrible knowledge of that child's horrible end.

In the heart of Mrs. Perry Parker there is the stifled, awful fear that little Marjorie, twin sister of murdered Marion, may be snatched away from her by the fanatical clever "Fox," who shattered the happiness of the Parker home.

But the brave mother, stunned by the death of little tom-boy Marjorie, who romped about the home and the kitchen so cheerily only five days ago, has bravely warded off a complete breakdown.

She was up early this morning to prepare breakfast for her grief-stricken husband—who, unknown to her, had held the torn torso of their child in his arms—and for Marjorie.

Through the windows the armed guard that has been put about the house is a constant reminder of the peril of Marjorie. And Marjorie, unaware of her own danger, tries to help, to comfort her mother and her father.

"Father and I know," the 26-year-old brother, Perry, confided nervously. "But we haven't told mother—or Marjorie. And we never will tell her."

Bravely the mother has struggled against weariness and exhaustion. She has slept little, but very little. Every moment physically possible has been devoted to her family.

"Mother's been wonderful through it all," Perry Jr., continued. "I don't know how she has held up, but she has. It has inspired us all to be brave. But somehow—well, we just can't tell her the whole thing."

"Father's asleep at last. He's worn out. Mother's so glad he's resting after all the trips and things he has made. She isn't thinking about herself at all."

But behind the bravery that has outwardly characterized Mrs. Parker through the terrible ordeal that is not yet finished, there has been the anguish of mother love that only the heroism of a mother can hide from a grief-stricken family.

THREE PERSONS HELD HERE ON THEFT CHARGES

Following the finding of the stripped automobile owned by Jesse S. Plunias, Tucson, stolen from near Fourth and Birch streets, Saturday night, officers arrested three Mexicans at Delhi, last night, and are holding them in jail on possible grand theft charges. Chief of Police Claude Rogers announced today.

The car was found in the Santa Ana river bed by boys at play, yesterday afternoon.

According to police reports, a search of the rooms of the three Mexican men arrested, uncovered windings and other auto parts believed to have been taken from the stripped machine.

The men under arrest are Mike Rodriguez, 21, 1801 West Third street, Louis Torres, 28, 1006 Logan street, and Felix O'Campo, 27, 1801 West Third street. They were arrested by Jesse Elliott, constable, and Officers Perry and Elliott of the police department.

THREE IN JAIL ON CHARGES OF HAVING LIQUOR

Two girls and a man are in the Orange county jail, on liquor charges, following their arrests on the highway, near Santa Ana, Saturday night by State Traffic Officers Barnhill and Yoder.

Virginia Wilson, 23, 112 Norvita street, Venice, is charged with being drunk and possession of liquor; Beryl Fagley, 29, has a like charge lodged against her, and Robert C. Mercer, 44, is charged with possession of liquor. Mercer lives at 725 Rialto street.

The trio were to have been given a hearing before Justice Kenneth Morrison this morning, but the search for the murderer of Marion Parker caused officers to be out all night, and the case probably will not be called before late this afternoon, it was said.

John J. Magan, 36, butcher, of Thirty-Eighth and Santa Fe street, Los Angeles, was arrested by Officer Yoder yesterday and is being held in the county jail for investigation, pertaining to an asserted violation of the state traffic laws. He too, probably will be arraigned this afternoon.

WILFRED CLARE ON TRIAL HERE TODAY

Wilfred Clare, San Diego bond salesman, charged with driving while under the influence of liquor, came to trial today in Superior Judge Homer G. Ames' court. Chief Deputy District Attorney L. W. Blodgett, with Clifford Fitzgerald, attorney for Clare, spent the morning examining prospective jurors. The actual trial was expected to get under way this afternoon.

Clare is said to have been drunk when his car overturned over a month ago, near San Juan Capistrano, injuring Gordon Webster, 17, of Modesto, who was riding with him.

"If a doctor went on the stand and testified that the defendant had been drinking when examined shortly after the accident, would you consider that this proved his guilt?" Fitzgerald asked one prospective juror.

"I object to that question," cut in Blodgett, and the defense withdrew the query, asking if this testimony would be considered conclusive evidence.

LOCAL MAN IS HELD UP IN LOS ANGELES

Two suitcases, containing valuables worth $100, together with $23 in cash, were taken from B. H. Berg, Santa Ana man, by two youthful bandits who held him up, in Los Angeles, last night, according to a report he filed with Los Angeles police.

Berg was driving his machine in the 2000 block on Miramar avenue, at the time the bandits boarded the car and ordered him to stop.

He had just taken a girl to her home and was returning at the time of the holdup, it was said.

WRITER SAYS TO HAVE PITY FOR CONGRESSMAN, WHO CAMPAIGNS YEARS FOR FIFTEEN-MONTH JOB

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Congressmen, who are subjected to contemptuous criticism both by intelligent persons who know what they're talking about and nit-wits who don't, are often more to be pitied than blamed.

One phase of the system by which men and women are made into representatives is so queer as to be almost ridiculous.

Many of the current crop of congressmen, old and new, have spent much more time campaigning and waiting for their seats than they will now spend in said seats.

Long before the Congress met early this month, they had been forced to begin their campaigns for the next Congress, which assembles two years hence in December, 1929.

A Congressman retains office 15 months after he is seated. Very often, his campaign had to be begun two years and more before he was seated. Thirteen months elapse between his election to the next Congress and frequently he began his campaign more than 18 months previous to the election, which means that numerous members of the Seventieth Congress had to step off the stump and onto the floor of the House.

For a specific example, take Rathbone of Illinois. Rathbone was elected a congressman-at-large in November, 1924, after being forced to get set late in 1925 for the April, 1926, primaries. On December 5, 1927, he took his seat. But months previously, he had to look to his political fences when Mayor Thompson of Chicago promised revenge for Rathbone's opposition in the mayoralty election.

In October, 1927, Mrs. Medill McCormick announced her candidacy and began a vigorous campaign which put his political life in jeopardy. Hence, Rathbone is and has for some time been working to win in the April, 1928, Illinois primary, after which he will have a six-month campaign for election ahead of him. If he is licked, he will go out of office a year from next March and Mrs. McCormick, or a Democrat, will come to the hill a year from next November.

All of which, among other things, places a discount on a candidate's campaign speeches. One who has already served may run largely on his record, but for one who would make promises for his next term or for his non-incumbent opponent, it is a difficult thing to talk to voters sincerely and convincingly about what he will do from 15 to 25 months ahead.

If he wins, then even after his election he must sit and twiddle his thumbs while the defeated incumbent sits through another session of Congress and casts "lame duck" votes which need take no inspiration from the wishes of his constituents who defeated him. He can't possibly make a legislative promise which he can begin to put into effect in less than 13 months, even if he announces a new platform on election eve, which he does not.

In one year, or two, conditions obviously change. Issues aren't what they were. National or local sentiment may shift. And it may be too much to ask a self-respecting candidate to bind his mind and his vote for the more than three years that may elapse from the beginning of his campaign to the end of his term. Few protest this to the voters, however. Being principally concerned with getting in, most of them who face any trouble over nomination or election will promise almost anything.

Senators are elected for six-year terms instead of two-year terms as representatives are. Every short session, of course, finds some of them in their seats although they have already been voted out.

The system, of course, is not so tough on the individual senator as for meets competition as for the individual congressman who must fight for his seat. Nevertheless, the proposed Norris amendment which would cut out the "lame duck" session and bring elected members of both houses into session within two months of their election has often been passed by the Senate, but has never even been voted on by the House.

Court Notes

Attempt to Foreclose

An attempt to foreclose a chattel mortgage on 28 head of cattle, two horses, farm machinery and an automobile was begun today with the filing of an action by the Star Hay company of Los Angeles, against C. Brulez and Tony Mancebo. They are alleged to have made a promissory note for $1073.12 on which $483.85 is said to be due. The note was secured by the mortgage.

Divorce Granted

A final judgment of divorce was granted today to Mrs. Margaret E. Boone, from John Boone. She alleged that two weeks after they were married, Boone stayed away most of the night while she was suffering with tonsillitis. Finally his friends brought him home drunk and dumped him on the front porch, she declared.

Wife's Position Called Slavery

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Miss Ellen Wilkinson, M. P., who is a strong advocate of votes for flappers and anything else she thinks will benefit women, says "the present position of a wife in England is on a par with slavery."

The average workman's wife, she contends, works eighty hours a week, sometimes more, and at the lowest board rate for women six pence, 12 cents, an hour—earns $2 a week.

"The women have made it possible for men's wages to be as low as they are," asserts Miss Wilkinson. "If the women demanded more money the employers would pay more."

PAGEANT GIVEN BY METHODIST CHURCH SUNDAY

By HENRY JAMES

A Christmas pageant entitled "When the Star Shone" was given Sunday evening at the First Sunday evening at the First congregation assembled to hear the old story surrounding the advent of the Christ depicted in songs and stories. The pageant is a composition of the Rev. Lyman Bayard, who has achieved remarkable success in producing plays and pageants with Biblical text.

The unique and beautiful scenery lent itself to a perfect setting of the pageant, and at once brought the audience to a well kept place just outside the ancient city of Bethlehem.

The parts of prophecy and history introduced the pageant and were taken by Hazel Smith as Prophecy, and Eleanor Salsbery as History. Their soft, mellow voices were heard to good advantage both in their solo work and in the counter-point chorus.

Cecil Marks as Rabbi Nathan portrayed the story in a fine way and probably carried the outstanding speaking part. Mrs. John Estes, as Judith, the Rabbi's wife, carried with her a warmth of charm and dignity and her soft speaking voice was quite effective.

The Roman soldiers looked very impressive in their colorful uniforms. The parts were taken by Fred Hein and Frank Humphrey. The shepherds, a quartet of Junior college fellows, gave color to the scene as they made their approach and told of the revelation that had come to them. George Warner, Lloyd Smith, Mohlis Geyer and Lyle Smith constituted this group.

The Bethlehem singer was Cleo Hein, whose clarion voice conveyed the message in song, of the Christ of the Bethlehem people.

The visit of the Wise Men is always appealing to human interest and their deep voices singing wondrously, "Where is He that is born King of the Jews?" was quite effective and distinctive. Their speaking parts were also exceedingly well done. This group included Mr. Fred Zaiser, Fred Jayne, Russell Lutes, John Estes, Huestis Snow, and R.L. Matthews.

The Bethlehem people, including the children, made a good ensemble. In fact the entire cast, including some 40 people, gave what one might call a perfect amateur presentation. The melodious music, the beautiful lighting and scenery, the colorful and proper costuming, together with the personality of the cast, seemed to make the old story live anew.

The production speaks the ability of Mrs. John Clarkson as director, who was ably assisted by Mrs. J. T. Wilson and James Hughes. The pageant will be given again next Friday night, it was announced.

PAPERS LAUDED BY FASCIST BODY

MILAN, Dec. 19.—At its last meeting the Fascist grand council dealt with the press, and the resolution adopted after a long discussion was a sort of official sanction of the intransigent policy already adopted toward Italian journalism by Fascism. The resolution says:

"The grand council, after having examined the problem of the press in relation to the regime and the party, salutes and applauds journalists and the journals that they have served with loyalty and sacrifice from the time of the (Fascist) intervention to the hour of victory, and from the hour of the revival to the present hour."

"It reaffirms the educational functions of the press and the necessity that, while preserving appropriate differences, it should be permeated and molded by the spirit of Fascism; and, recognizing that the regime should be able to rely unconditionally on the most important journals, entrusts to the secretary-general of the Fascist party and study of the problem on the firm understanding that the editorial posts and the headship of departments must be given to the most faithful Black Shirts."

This resolution does not make any change in the de facto situation of the Italian press, but it is believed that certain editors who, though in sympathy with and loyal to the regime, have not yet the ticket of the party, will have to make way for authentic and "most faithful Black Shirts."

PREJUDICES BANNED

TOKIO, Dec. 19.—The minister for war has issued instructions to the troops throughout the empire to refrain from words or deeds calculated to offend the Eta (the former outcast class). The home office is also considering measures to abate the peasantry's prejudices against the outcasts.

HOUSE BADLY DAMAGED BY MORNING FIRE

The home of J. W. Temple, 1502 North Broadway, was badly damaged by fire shortly after 9 o'clock this morning when sparks from a bon-fire, in a vacant lot next door, fell on the room and set it afire. A stiff wind fanned the sparks to life and when firemen arrived, the flames had gained a big headway on the second floor.

The damage will run into several hundreds of dollars it is believed.

Temple was burning leaves in a vacant lot when he noticed that sparks had fallen on the roof. He attempted to put out the flames with a garden hose, but was unsuccessful.

Water damage inside the house was greater, it is believed, than the actual damage done by the fire.

TINY REPUBLIC CONTINUES TO KEEP FREEDOM

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—San Marino, smallest independent state in the world, continues to preserve its separate status in the heart of Fascist Italy as it has through the Dark Ages, the Renaissance and even the Napoleonic upheaval.

The little republic, only 38 square miles in area, is entirely surrounded by Italian territory. It lies about 10 miles inland from the Adriatic in Northeastern Italy, near the coastal city of Rimini, in the edge of the province of Forli.

The town of San Marino, capital and dominant community of the republic, is perched on top of a great rock, Mount Titano—the famous mountain which, according to a myth recalled by the National Geographic society, the ancients called "Mons Sacer."

But Mount Titano has been an abode of peace now for 15 centuries. The story is that the republic was founded by a pious stonecutter, Marino, from Dalmatia, who, in the fourth century, brought Christianity to fellow stone workers and retired with them to seek peace and quiet on the rocky mountain. A Christian convert, the wealthy mason, Felicesimo, who owned the mountain, gave it to Marino, and in his death he willed it to his followers "free from every other man."

At times the Sammarinesi have had to fight in defense of their rocky home; once against Caesar Borgia in the sixteenth century and again against Cardinal Alberoni in 1739. Napoleon left the republic unmolested in a letter wrote: "We consider San Marino a model republic."

San Marino includes level fields around Mount Titano, but these have been acquired by purchase, not by aggression. The automobile that brings visitors from the nearest railway station at Rimini crosses these outlying lands of the republic, and climbs up the lower slopes of the rock. All passengers must descend before the ancient archway to the city. One must climb from there atop a steep, narrow, crooked street past little squares, to the chief square, the Piazza della Libertà, with its statue of the cherished liberty in the center. About this square are the government palace, the tribunal and the postal and telegraph offices. In an angle of the palace stands a statue of the founder, San Marino.

The government of the 11,000 inhabitants of San Marino has many medieval touches, but above all is its simplicity. Twice a year the heads of families meet in a body to petition the government. The latter consists of an elective council of 60 members chosen by the citizens for three-year terms, and two regents elected from the council by the latter. These serve for six months and are not eligible for re-election for three years. The regents receive no salary, but each has an allowance of about $30 with which to purchase clothes. Elaborate medieval costumes are used on state occasions and the allowance hardly covers the expense.

In the more level lands of San Marino the peasants farm. But the typical Sammarinese is, like the founder of the republic, a stonecutter, employed in the quarries on the slopes of the great rock.

San Marino issues its own stamps, but uses Italian money. It has extradition treaties with the United States, Great Britain and several important European countries, and maintains consular representatives in a number of foreign lands.

Swedish Planes Go 194,000 Miles Without Accident

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 19.—Without a mishap Swedish airplanes in commercial aviation have covered in 1927 a distance of 194,000 miles in a total time of 2362 hours. Approximately 14,000 passengers were carried, against 10,000 in 1926, and freight and baggage amounted to 162,023 pounds compared to 127,255 pounds in 1926. In four years Swedish commercial planes have covered more than 621,000 miles, carrying 87,422 passengers.

TWO KILLED AS AUTO CRASHES INTO BIG TREE

FULLERTON, Dec. 19.—Two men were instantly killed about 7 o'clock Saturday night when the car in which they were riding swerved into a tree as they were entering Fullerton on the Brea boulevard near to the Brea-Fullerton bridge at the north end of Fullerton.

The two men who were killed were Leon P. Sarthou, 513 East Cedar street, Brea, and J. E. Anderson, Brea, next door neighbor to Sarthou. The two men were about 30 years of age and both were married, Sarthou having one child. Sarthou was an oil worker for the Union Oil company. Anderson was also employed in the oil fields near Brea.

According to an autoist who saw the accident, Sarthou, who was driving, was traveling at a high rate of speed. As the car reached a curve in the road, it swerved into a tree, one wheel was knocked off and the car skidded about 40 feet. The auto was completely demolished. According to a mechanic at a garage, to which the car was towed, the accident was caused by the breaking of the drive shaft. It was also said the strong wind might have been responsible for the tragedy.

The bodies were removed to the J. E. Sarthou funeral parlors where an inquest was scheduled to be held this afternoon by Coroner Brown.

TRUSTEE IS ASKED TO GIVE ACCOUNTING

Hugh Miller, of Fullerton, today began action in the superior court to force Frank O. Evans, also of that city, to make an accounting of his trusteeship for property valued at $60,000. Miller claims that Evans has refused to give out the information, and has misused the funds of the trust.

The defendant became trustee of the property when he demanded that Miller convey it to him in trust for the liquidation of debts which Miller contracted in the development of a subdivision near Fullerton, the plaintiff declared. Miller also wishes Evans to be removed from his position. He explained that he had borrowed from Evans in order to develop and sell a subdivision. Evans has a subdivision adjacent to his, he stated, and has tried to discount the attractiveness of the Miller property in order to sell his own, although he holds the former land in trust.

Successors To Former Russian Leaders Named

RIGA, Dec. 19.—The soviet government has been busy formally giving effect to the recent decision of the Communist party to deprive Trotsky, Rakovsky, Zinoviev, Kamenef and others of all their official positions and appointing their successors. The president of the Russian Bank of Trade and Industry, Ksandroff, has been appointed Trotsky's successor as chairman of the concessions committee.

As numerous places were renamed after revolutionary leaders, orders have been issued to find new designations for places that received the names of "renegade Leninists." With a view to avoiding future difficulties, such towns are adopting the names of institutions and dead leaders rather than those of living communists, "why may become renegades." Thus Zinovievsk has been renamed Dzerzhinsk, after the late chief of the Cheka, and Trotsky has been renamed Krasnoarminsk.

SANTA ANA TEACHERS WILL ATTEND ANNUAL MEETING OF STATE P. T. A. ON WEDNESDAY

According to announcement here today by Miss Gladys P. Campbell, of the publicity committee, most of the teachers of Santa Ana, Orange county, and Southern California, today were anticipating the opening in Los Angeles Wednesday evening of the thirty-fourth annual session of the California Teachers' association, southern section.

"Education for Citizenship," will be the theme of the institute, and men and women prominent in educational circles will discuss many phases of education.

Speakers of note have been secured, among them Joy Elmer Morgan, editor of the National Association Journal, Washington, D. C.; Augustus O. Thomas, president of World Federation of Education association, and state commissioner of education, Augustus, Me.; William John Cooper, state superintendent of public instruction, Sacramento; Charles H. Judd, director of school education, University of Chicago, and Will C. Wood, former state superintendent and now superintendent of banks, San Francisco.

Aside from general sessions, there will be section meetings devoted to the various departments of education.

All Los Angeles sessions of the institute will be counted in lieu of local meetings.

Emphasizing the possible attendance at the institute, Miss Campbell said there were 1054 teachers in Orange county, virtually all of whom are obligated to attendance.

The program follows: Wednesday—7:45 p. m.; opening session; address: "School Experiences Which Make for Citizenship," Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, superintendent of schools, Los Angeles.

Thursday—9:20 a. m.; general session; theme, "Character Education"; address: "Is the New Emphasis a Moral Education?" E. H. Lindley, chancellor, University of Kansas; address: "Spiritual Vision Essential to an Enduring Civilization," Paul F. Cadman, associate dean of men, University of California.

General session, theme, "The Challenge of Childhood." Address: "The Child's Right to be Understood," Joy Elmer Morgan, editor, National Education Association Journal, Washington, D. C. Address: "The Job of Being Young Today," F. J. Kelley, dean of administration, University of Minnesota.

General session, theme, "International Relations." Address: "How Can America Aid Most Effectively the Evolution Toward a Stable, Peaceful World?" Paul Harvey, address: "The Eight Educational Objectives, or the Quest of a New World," Augustus O. Thomas, president, World Federation of Education associations, state commissioner of education, Augustus, Me. General session, theme, "The Teaching Profession." Address: "Is Teaching a Profession?" William John Cooper, state superintendent of public instruction, Sacramento. Address: "Our Profession and What We Should Make of It," H. L. Smith, dean of education, University of Indiana.

General session, theme, "Educational Objectives." Address: "The Brightest and Dullest Ten Per Cent of Our Schools: Some Proposals for Differentiations of Objectives," David S. Snedden, Teachers' college, Columbia University. Address: "Social Psychology and Education," Charles H. Judd, director of school of education, University of Chicago.

Friday—9:30 a. m. General session, theme, "Enlarged Responsibilities." Address: "The Results of Expansion on American Education," Charles H. Judd, address: "Professional Roughage," A. E. Winship, editor Journal of Education, Boston.

General session, theme, "Our Problems of Leadership." Address: "Leadership," W. C. Wood, superintendent of banks, San Francisco. Address: "The Next Step in the International Program," Paul Harvey.

General session, theme, "Educational Theories." Address: "Popular Illusions," Augustus O. Thomas. Address: "Some Humorous Aspects of Present Day Educational Theories," Dr. David S. Snedden.

Friday—1:30 p. m. General session, theme, "Educational Adjustments." Address: "Education and Adjustment," Augustus O. Thomas.

Editor Speaks On Communists In United States

MOSCOW, Dec. 19.—The work of the communist party in the United States, especially in Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrations, was discussed by Nikolai Bukharin, editor of Pravda, addressing the communist party congress on communist international activities.

"As regards the United States, we may say the communist party there succeeded in heading a sufficiently serious movement arising in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti execution."

"From 200,000 to 300,000 workers struck in New York, the conflict assuming at times the form of street fighting," he said.

Salary Increase For Ministers

LONDON, Dec. 19.—The Lord Mayor of London and the Bishop of London have instituted a fund to guarantee every clergyman in charge of a parish in the Church of England in the London area a minimum annual salary of 400 pounds. An investigating committee discovered that 200 clergymen were receiving only 200 pounds or less. Many of the vicarages provided for the clergy are so large and out-of-date that they entail expense far beyond the reach of a man of limited means.

GERMANY, U. S. TO ESTABLISH NEW RELATIONS

By DR. GUSTAV STOLPER, BERLIN, Dec. 19.—Important visits will be exchanged and important decisions reached between Germany and America in the next few weeks.

S. Parker Gilbert, agent general for reparations is enroute to America; the new German ambassador, Friedrich Wilhelm Von Prittwitz-Daffron, takes over his post in Washington in January and at the same time Benjamin Strong, governor of the federal reserve district of New York comes to Berlin.

These are not pleasure trips. When Gilbert returned to Europe last time he found in Paris a report of the conclusion of the last Prussian loan. He immediately requested the state department to veto the loan and conditions were altered in accordance with the Versailles treaty as interpreted by the department. In the interval there has been the famous exchange of letters between Gilbert and Finance Minister Koehler, and the agent-general's semi-annual report will be published soon. The German government has altered its budget sweeping to meet his views and it now announces an important move—the chancellor has invited the minister-president of the various German states to a great conference in January. The program includes discussion of the German constitutional question of legal and financial relationship between the reichs and the states.

Inquiry is conducted in agreement with the reichs bank has conducted an inquiry concerning existing municipal indebtedness. It desires to learn how much the cities have borrowed in short term loans and how large their money requirements are for the coming year. The government and the reichsbank desire to help consolidate these debts, thus doing away with the whole municipal problem.

Along with this, there is another financial problem. The German railways desire to sell 200,000,000 marks in preferred stocks abroad.

They need the money for investments created two billion marks of preferred. Thirteen billion marks of the capital stock of the railways belongs to the reich and eleven billions to the allies as a part of the reparations payments. But Mr. Gilbert heretofore has refused to permit the issuance of preferred shares for distribution abroad and also any such guaranty for interest as exists for shares placed in Germany. He now will have to discuss these matters in America.

At the same time Strong comes to Berlin by way of London and Paris. His object is almost the same. The heads of the big banks of emission have decided to meet every few months in order to achieve international co-operation. But Strong also desires to inform himself regarding the entire German financial situation.

Big Discussion Expected Everybody expects that an international discussion regarding the possibility of carrying out the Dawes plan will begin by the end of 1928 or the beginning of 1927 by which time it must be apparent whether transfer of the whole reparations sum is possible. Furthermore, by that time elections will have been held in France, England, Germany and the United States and there will be new governments in several or all of those countries—those in Europe probably oriented further toward the left and less nationalistic and hence more ready to reach an understanding. But whatever developments may come, the discussion is bound to make international capital markets uneasy, for cautious capitalists fear nothing so much as uncertainty. The great task of the leading banks of issue is to alleviate this uneasiness through their influence and credit policies.

Meanwhile, the Washington senate again will consider the release of sequestered German property. This is not merely a question of money for Germany. It is even more important as establishing a principle. Germany is working for America through its example, to declare the sacredness of private property, which was assailed by the war and by bolshevism.

Germany herself, which alone among the great powers is disarmed, is devoting all her energies to the peaceful upbuilding of her culture and economy. The overwhelming majority of German people know this is possible only on a capitalistic foundation. But Germany is the nearest big neighbor of Russia an hence is most exposed to its bolshevist influences. Germany desires to remain the European bulwark against Bolshevism but other capitalistic powers, and above all, the United States, the greatest and mightiest of them all, must not hesitate to make economic sacrifices for this principle.

COSTA MESA, Dec. 19.—Members of the Costa Mesa Friday Afternoon club held their annual Christmas party last week, the setting being a school room, with Mrs. C. G. Huston as teacher.

Mrs. R. G. Roberts was county superintendent of schools. Readings were given by Mrs. T. E. Balze, Mrs. George Fair, Mrs. B. W. Ellis, Mrs. W. W. Crozier and Mrs. L. R. Daughenbaugh. Mrs. E. N. Gage was Santa Claus.

Bags of candy, peanuts and cookies were distributed among the "children." Hostesses were Mrs. Crozier, Mrs. Lew Wallace and Mrs. Jackson.

STATE LOCATES HOMES FOR 303 ORPHAN BABIES

By CLEM WHITAKER, Staff Correspondent Santa Ana Register

SACRAMENTO, Dec. 19.—California's foster stork, the state government which went into the business of distributing babies to foster families of youngsters, today gave a report of its stewardship for the first four months under the new law requiring that all adopted babies carry the state seal.

During this period, from July 29 to December 1, 303 certified, one hundred per cent babies were adopted by new foster parents under the state's supervision, according to Mrs. Anna L. Sawyer, director of the State Department of Social Welfare.

The state, working in co-operation with the counties and the various adoption courts, found homes for 244 of the little waifs. Mrs. Sawyer announced, while the Natives Sons and Daughters "placed" 42 youngsters and the Children's Home Society found parents for 17 others.

In Los Angeles county, foster parents were found for 112 orphan children by the state, while the Native Sons and Daughters with the Children's Home Society helped 11 other youngsters to secure good homes.

Eight homeless children in Orange county were aided in making a new start with adopted parents during the period, of whom seven were "placed" by the county-state co-operative plan outlined under the new law. The statute requires that the state, or one of its authorized home-finding agencies, approve each adoption.

In Riverside county, three orphan children found new homes under the state's guidance, while another child was adopted under supervision of the Native Sons and Daughters, one of the approved home-finding organizations. The Los Angeles "baby farms" expose of more than a year ago, which disclosed that children were sold into virtual slavery, hastened adoption of the new law.

Snake Skins Are Sought By Women

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Curator of Reptiles Raymond L. Ditmars of Bronx Zoological park is finding it difficult to give his charges proper attention. His time, it seems, is given almost entirely to filing applications by women for skins of snakes, which the women hope may not be long for this world.

Since the snake skin shoe gained popularity the reptile house, Ditmars finds, has become the center of attraction for women visitors. Yesterday, for example, so many women besieged the curator for a piece of the 22 foot skin which Rex, the royal python, has laid away for the winter that he was obliged to leave the snake house and hide in the woods. Explaining that the shed python skin was not the kind used in making shoes seemed to do no good, he said.

Curator Ditmars is not in favor of giving the skins of dead snakes to women. He takes the stand that a snake that dies after a long public career at the Zoo is entitled to be buried in his own skin.

The Rev. L. C. Mathis, 414 South Birch street, reported prowlers in his neighborhood last night. An investigation by officers revealed no one.

Louis Peterson, Orange, reported to Santa Ana police that a spare tire was stolen from his machine last night, while the car was parked on East Fourth street.

Three men were arrested by Santa Ana police officers, over the week-end, on drunk charges. All were lodged in the county jail. They are: John Powers, 32, 123 Daisy street; Thomas C. Thompson, Santa Ana, and Ernest Gracian, 28 B street, Tustin.

A window found open in the Santa Ana post office building Saturday night by Fred Robinson, night watchman for merchants, caused an investigation, but the building was not entered, according to a police report.

HIGHWAY BODY ASKS BIDS ON LOCAL BRIDGES

The state highway department today had issued a call for bids for the construction of two bridges on the state highway south of Santa Ana, according to information from the Sacramento office of the commission. The offers will be open January 3.

One is for a reinforced concrete girder bridge with a 40-foot roadway across Aliso creek, just below Irvine. The other is for the widening to 40 feet of a concrete bridge two miles south of Tustin.

There has been real need for a wider bridge at Aliso creek and it is possible construction of the new construction will be made in such a manner as to eliminate a danger point caused by an almost abrupt turn up a grade at the south end of the present bridge.

LEO BROCK IS SUMMONED IN LOS ANGELES

Leo Brock, for the past 22 years identified with the postoffice department in Los Angeles, died at the Good Samaritan hospital in Los Angeles yesterday, at the age of 50 years. Death was due to heart trouble, and Mr. Brock had been in the hospital for two weeks.

He is survived by his widow, one daughter, Miss Concetta Brock, and one son, Leo Jr., and two sisters and one brother, Mrs. J. W. Tubbs and Neal Brock, Santa Ana, and Mrs. Corinne Wade, Los Angeles.

Funeral services will be held at the Brown funeral parlors, Sixteenth and Flower, Los Angeles, tomorrow, at 2 p. m., under the auspices of Masons. Interment will be in Inglewood cemetery.

Mr. Brock was a resident of Santa Ana in his boyhood days, and was deputy county clerk under his father, D. T. Brock, who served the county from January 1, 1893, to January 1, 1896.

Immediately following the Spanish-American war, Mr. Brock entered the customs department at Manila and later entered the postoffice service there. He was transferred from Manila to Los Angeles postoffice 22 years ago, and at the time of his death was service clerk at Station D. He saw service in the Philippines as a member of Co. D, 35th California infantry.

Mrs. L. P. Yandell Injured In Fall

COSTA MESA, Dec. 19.—Mrs. L. P. Yandell, mother of Mrs. E. S. Gilbert, of Santa Ana, was seriously injured Saturday night, when she fell from her porch, breaking her shoulder.

ALLEGED CHECK BY MERCHANT

Following his asserted attempt to pass a $10 check at the Sam Hurwitz store, on East Fourth street, Saturday night, Wilmar Adams, 32, 374 North Cambridge street, Orange, was arrested by C. V. Adams, Santa Ana police officer, and locked in the county jail on a charge of passing worthless checks.

Five other checks, totaling $101, were said to have been found in the man's pockets, one in each pocket. All were made out and endorsed, but no attempt had been made to pass them, it was said.

Hurwitz became suspicious of the man when a check was tendered in payment for an article purchased. He looked up the address the man gave on the back of the check and found it to be fictitious, it was said. Detaining the man, he called the police.

When the officer arrived, the man's story regarding addresses sounded suspicious and he was arrested.

Stainless Steel Hits Sheffield

SHEFFIELD, Eng., Dec. 19.—Sheffield cutlery makers are faced with new competition in the shape of foreign stainless steel. Stainless steel was Sheffield's own invention and revolutionized the cutlery trades. A number of French and German firms are now offering stainless steel at eight cents a pound cheaper than the home product. Trial quantities are being worked up, and if the new imports prove satisfactory the British industry will be badly hit, since they can not lower their production costs and cheapen their supplies.

Peggy Maddieux . . . the Navy came to her rescue.

IS A PENNILESS little bathing beauty, fresh from the Wildest West, safe alone in a great eastern city?

What happens when a pretty girl, picked to represent her home city as its fairest flower, finds herself down to her last dollar, 3000 miles from home, bright lights all around, and not a friend to call upon for aid?

Ask Miss Peggy Maddieux, who was 1927's "Miss Seattle." She knows. She had $1.50 in New York. She landed in Philadelphia with 50 cents. She managed to get to Chicago with a dime. She finally got into a little Minnesota town, in a midnight rainstorm, without a cent. And nothing happened to her!

"No matter how unsophisticated a girl is, she's safe in any great American city—if she wants to be," says "Miss Seattle."

And, oh yes, there was the United States Navy. The Navy made America safe for Peggy once. But that's part of the story.

PEGGY'S adventure really began when a vaudeville theater in Utica, N. Y., offered her a week's engagement at $50. She went from New York to the upstate town and interviewed the manager of the theater. There was something about the contract that she didn't like, so she turned it down.

Out on the street she looked in her purse. She had just enough money for a ticket back to New York, with $1.50 over. She went back to New York.

There, she strolled up and down Broadway, proud of the pretty frock the admiring townfolks and merchants in Seattle had given her before her trip east to compete in a national beauty contest. Not a soul spoke to her or molested her.

She remembered, just when she was almost at the end of her wits, that she had a round trip ticket from Seattle to New York. She remembered, too, that $1.50 would provide pretty slim meals and no berth for a four-day trip back to the Pacific coast.

So she took a train for Philadelphia, wondering what was going to happen next. A slim dinner on the diner reduced her $1.50 by two-thirds—to what is slangily termed "four bits."

She couldn't stay in Philadelphia. A sandwich and a cup of coffee cut her half-dollar to a dime. With the dime in one gloved hand and her suitcase—it weighed a ton by now—in the other, she took a train for Chicago, sitting in a stuffy day-coach because she had no money for a Pullman ticket.

Alone in the crowded train she still was safe—but hungry. And then the United States Navy stepped in, as it has a habit of doing in emergencies.

She glanced up to see a trim figure in uniform standing by her seat. A naval lieutenant saluted respectfully. He spoke, diffidently, inquiring if the Navy could be of service.

"Miss Seattle" opined that the Navy could. She told her story; exhibited the dime. The Navy had the situation well in hand within five minutes.

Adventure—some Miss Seattle . . . the beauty whose story had no beasts.

A quiet little dinner in the diner; a whispered conversation between the lieutenant and the Pullman conductor—and a cosy berth appeared as if by magic. The next morning there was a breakfast "a deux." And then, the Navy saluted and silently disappeared, as is the habit of the Navy when a job is done.

SO, still squeezing the dime, Peggy waited around Chicago for money from home. The slick-haired sheiks and the portly grain buyers gave her a friendly smile—and let it go at that.

A weary day of waiting, and no money in sight. She expended the dime on doughnuts. She remembered some friends in Ortonville, Minnesota. A query to the ticket agent disclosed that her train west passed through the town and she could break her journey.

Another long, hungry ride in a day coach. A rainswept night. A short halt at a little country depot. The station agent, a kindly old German, listened while she told of her plight. He and his buxom wife took her into their home for the night and, in the morning, delivered her—still safe—to her startled midwest relatives.

Can a pretty girl, in attractive new frocks, wander around alone through crowded cities, almost penniless, for a week—and never be molested?

"I'll say she can—if she wants to," says pretty Peggy.

THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS

"Aw gee, Mom, I understand. Why, you just told me Santa Claus only meant the spirit of Christmas, didn't cha?"

Don't Let Pride Rob You of Happiness

OUR school chum, Mavis, whom "the bunch" hadn't seen for ages, invited the old gang to what she termed a "cafeteria picnic," one day last fall, and I have been thinking of her ever since.

Mavis had been our star hostess in school days, and if we hadn't all adored her so we would have been jade with envy for the sort of hospitality she, the only daughter of a wealthy man, could give.

What gorgeous week-ends those were in the big white Colonial house on the hill, with colored lacy-capped maids bringing us frosty tinkly glasses in summer, and hot cups of cocoa in winter!

There was a private dance hall where we held the gayest parties with dancing, eats, and sometimes a special motion picture showing. We slept, all eight of the gang, on a big breezy sleeping porch built right into the friendly arms of leafy elms and maples.

But the years have gone by. Mavis married one of those "promising young men" who has, indeed, done little but promise ever since. The family fortune is almost gone and even if it were not, Mavis' pride would never let her take any help from anyone, not even her father.

Mavis dropped out from "the bunch" long ago. We heard of a baby, then another and another. We heard of Mavis' husband out of first one job and then another. We heard that they finally had left the city, being utterly unable to maintain even the most modest establishment there, and had moved into the country, the husband commuting daily to his city work, if any.

"Poor Mavis!" we said whenever we thought of her.

THEN the invitation came to "the bunch." "Please come out Saturday afternoon," Mavis wrote in the hand we knew so well, "just for an informal little cafeteria supper; I do so want to see you all."

We rejoiced together. Fortune had smiled upon Mavis again. Maybe her husband was doing more than promise at last. Maybe a fortune had been left Mavis. Maybe—

None of our theories seemed to hold much water when we found Mavis' house—a big square, gray, sagging farmhouse which looked as if winters had drenched it and summers had scorched it for a century or so. Mavis rushed down the long, sloping, uncut lawn to embrace us and laugh and weep a little. Even her crisp pink gingham with white organdy collar and cuffs could not hide the worry lines in her once so pretty face, or maybe it was the girlish pink gingham that accentuated the lines. Mavis drank in our silk dresses, running worn fingers over Anne's beige georgette, her eyes gobbling up Marie's jade green crepe with its modish kick pleats.

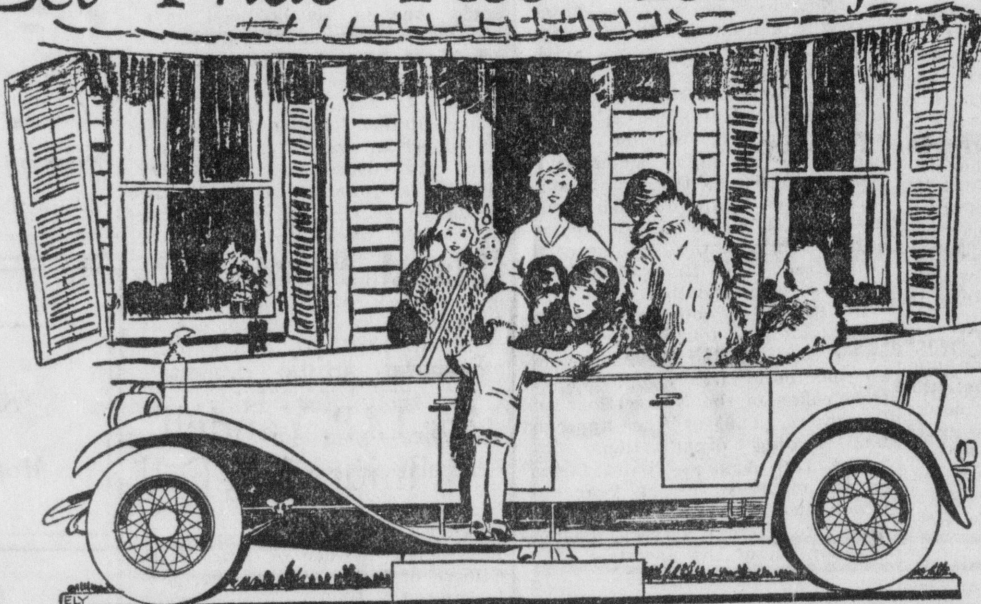

"You girls look like a million dollars!" Mavis exclaimed without a trace of envy or jealousy in her voice. "I haven't had a silk dress in five years. Behold the Gingham Wife!" And she dropped a curtsy in the pink gingham gown.

We toiled up the uncut lawn shadowed by sprawling apple and plum and pear trees that needed the pruning knife.

"Things are in very bad shape," Mavis remarked, "but Dick just can't get around to fix them—it takes so much of his time just getting to and from his work!" We exchanged glances which meant, "still the protective, loyal wife!"

Without a word of apology Mavis led us over the rickety porch, with its very few pieces of unsightly furniture, into the living room. And such a shabby, worn, rather common room! One knew that life had used Mavis badly, indeed.

But the long, simple lines of the big room with

BUT this is no story of the compensations of children for material want. It is another story.

Late in the afternoon, the Mavis, who stayed in bed Sunday mornings and sipped her iced orange juice brought in by a solicitous maid, casually told us that it was time to get the picnic ready, and that there was a job for all of us. "I just couldn't get everything ready—the children took so much of my time all morning," Mavis apologetically explained.

Anne "squeeze" lemons into a fruit jar and mixed the juice with sugar. Marie chopped cold ham and pickles together and spread the sandwiches. Ruth sliced cold boiled potatoes, mixed them with dressing and hard-boiled egg and pimiento and celery. Dorothy made a sea foam frosting for the big chocolate cake Mavis had baked the day before, and Mavis herself collected plates and cups and saucers and spoons and napkins and bananas and olives. The kids pranced and tugged at skirts, but there was room in that Martha Washington kitchen for a dozen more babies.

Everything was ready and we carried our baskets out under the old fruit trees, spread down a paper tablecloth and our cushions, and ate as none of us, victims of restaurant fare, had eaten for weeks.

We were all a little mellowed and warmed and softened by the late afternoon sun that seeped through the fruit tree branches, making fairy patterns in gold on the lush summer grass, and we talked together, especially of the joy of being together again after all these years.

"I've been a fool," said Mavis, her brown head on Marie's shoulder, one hand rumpling the golden curls of a baby girl in her lap. "I've been a plain fool for waiting for friendship until the time when things came right again, when, by taking it sooner, things might have come right without waiting. I've needed friends even more than money."

"You girls can't imagine how I dreaded asking you, much as I ached to see you. Could I make you see that my home was anything but a poor old farmhouse that nobody else wanted, and which I rented for $50 a year? Could I make you have a good time in the only way that I could afford? I wouldn't dare 'open up' like this, girls, if I didn't know that you see something here but poverty, and that you do enjoy being here."

"I think I'm through waiting for life. I'll never have things much different. Why should I spend my youth waiting for happiness which I might have now, if I'd only use all the opportunities for it which I have?"

I've thought of Mavis a hundred times since then. I wish she would go about spreading her gospel. This waiting for happiness doesn't pay. One can never really live until he or she finds in the raw material right at hand, happiness, if not ideal, then a very acceptable compromise.

A man in Germany was sentenced to serve two hundred and eleven years for five hundred robberies. If he's got to serve the full two hundred and eleven years, we hope for his sake that there's a jail in heaven!

About this time of the year a lot of people, who have friends in California of the post card writin' variety, are praying for a raging blizzard—for California.

One of th' hottest an' closest struggles we can think of would be to have the Pullman company challenge a well-known collar company to a namin' duel!

If we've got to have political machines, one of th' things we need a lot more than a steam roller is a steam laundry!

Henry Ford has sure done a lot to improve his cars, what with self-starters and so forth; but some of 'em still carry cranks.

Judge Miranda. . . . "I pronounce you man and wife."

JUST off the showy main street of Tijuana, Mexico, near a row of splendid saloons, stands the marriage factory of Francisco L. Miranda, civil judge. Both the saloons and the marriage factory are prosperous and both owe their prosperity to American laws. Perhaps that is why both are so largely patronized by Americans from across the California border a mile north of Tijuana.

Judge Miranda's unique factory came into existence shortly after the California legislature had enacted a law requiring all who would venture into matrimony in the state to give notice of their intentions three days in advance. This edict, which was designed to eliminate hasty and foolish marriages, was construed to mean that three days must elapse between the day of application for a marriage license and the day of issuance of the license. The interim period therefore really amounts to five days. And five days is a long time to wait when two lovers are in a hurry.

Perhaps it would be unkind to hint that Judge Miranda's factory was organized to defeat the intention of the California law. But, anyhow, after the law was passed the judge weighed the matter in a cool impartial way and decided that something should be done to alleviate such intolerable conditions. The marriage factory is the result of these judicial cogitations. In the marriage factory an eager couple can become one in about five minutes.

"THE only wait that lovers find between them and happiness in my office is the line that forms at the door," says the judge with some pride. "I have been doing quite a business since California's marriage law went into effect. Three, or rather five days, seems to many lovers like a very long time to wait. I hope the people who come to my office will always be as anxious for each other's company as they are when I marry them, but quiten sabe?"

The judge maintains that under the constitution given to Mexico in 1917 by General Carranza it is quite all right for him to dispense with all the red tape incidental to getting a license in this country. Under the constitution, he says, it is possible for boys of 16 and girls of 14 to marry, provided they have the consent of their parents. And when the parents withhold their consent unreasonably, the judge says, it is within the province of the governor of the state or territory to act in the matter.

All authorities do not agree with the judge in the belief that he is lawfully performing a service to humanity. E. F. Du Fresno, for instance, who is an American attorney familiar with Mexican law, believes that the judge is overly optimistic when he states that the products of the marriage factory are legally valid. Mr. Du Fresno insinuates that when American couples are married in the judge's emporium the only witnesses are often a couple of Mexicans who have been invited to the ceremony but who are totally unacquainted with the character, conduct or past history of the bridal couple.

WHILE thus insinuating, Mr. Du Fresno points out that General Carranza's constitution requires that the two witnesses to a marriage must have known the prospective bride and groom for at least three years prior to their marriage and must swear that they are of legal age to wed.

Two products to Tijuana's marriage factory . . . took just five minutes to make them one.

False affirmations on the part of such witnesses are punishable by from two to six years behind iron bars under the same constitution, Mr. Du Fresno adds.

In short, Mr. Du Fresno argues that couples who are married in the judge's establishment are not married at all and in this contention the California courts have supported him more than once. Nevertheless, American couples continue to crowd the judge's office. Sometimes as many as 15 or 20 come in one day. And this means a tidy sum in the judge's pocket, for his honor is not in the marriage business for his health or even for sweet philanthropy.

For a reasonably fast marriage he charges $27.50 and for a really rapid one he gets $50. Once the judge collected $75 from an inebriated gentleman who was in a special hurry to take unto himself a wife. Residents of Tijuana say that the job was almost instantaneous.

Although the Mexican law provides for a fee of $5 for the natives, those rates do not prevail in the case of Americans. This, the judge evidently believes, is as it should be. The Americans have made the business and they ought to pay for it.

ATLANTA, Dec. 19.—Frank Ball, English golfer and cousin of Frank Ball, famous English linksman who won seven British amateur crowns and one British open title, has been named to succeed Stewart Maiden, upon whose play Bobby Jones modeled his own, as professional at the Eastlake Country club here.

ATHENS, Ga., Dec. 19.—Roy Jacobson, guard, and Glenn Lautzenheiser, tackle, both of Atlanta, will share the captaincy of the University of Georgia Bulldogs during the season of 1928. This honor was conferred on the two star linemen of the 1927 team at the banquet given by the Georgia Athletic association.

GOLDEN BEAR'S BAD BOY

Because Ned Green, star California tackle, failed to pay a $10 student activity fee, he has not been given the "Block C" he earned this season and may not be able to play against Pennsylvania December 31 in the Andy Smith Memorial game. The student association at California is expected to settle Green's case hurriedly in order to enable him to take part in the intersectional contest.

TRACK PROSPECTS PROMISING AT TROY AS 40 CANDIDATES REPORT TO COACH CROMWELL

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 19.—Despite the fact that the official turn-out date for track prospects at the University of Southern California is set for Tuesday, January 2, more than 40 hopefuls already have reported to Coach Dean Cromwell as candidates for the varsity. The Trojans expect another strong track aggregation this year, and they hope to fight it out with Stanford for the Pacific Coast and I.C.A.A. A.A. championships.

FULLERTON 'B' BOYS LOSE IN PLAYOFF, 6-0

One of the most hair-raising, death-defying plays ever witnessed on a football field beat Fullerton high school's stalwart Class B eleven out of the Southern California lightweight championship at Wrigley field Saturday afternoon, Long Beach getting the nod, 6 to 0.

The "Little Red Team" outplayed the Baby Jackrabbits all day, losing several golden opportunities to score because of fumbles and thereafter game closed with neither side having scored.

In the five-play playoff, Fullerton worked the ball to the Long Beach 40-yard line only to have the Jackrabbits 130-pounders, on their fourth trial, work reverse play, a lateral pass and then a forward pass to Elliott, all of this actually on one play, and get away with it for a touchdown. It was a complicated play that few teams could execute even in practice.

YANKEES LOOK GOOD FOR A. L. PENNANT AGAIN

Baseball Men Say Browns Slipped Over Fast One In Deal With Detroit

By GEORGE H. KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Now that the major league meeting has ended, it is possible to tell who's who and what's what in the big leagues. Whatever the short comings of the 1928 crop of big league managers, there's not a man among them who is apt to get swindled in a baseball deal.

Little trading took place at the annual winter meetings and it was principally because every club wanted a couple of real ball players in exchange for a flock of dubs.

The Brown-Tiger trade, the Cuyler deal and the Sisler sale constitute the biggest transactions since the Yankees won the world's championship last October.

And the way things stand right now, it looks like the Yankees might go on winning world's championships for a few years to come—well, anyway, the American league pennant.

Yanks Stand "As Is"
Miller Huggins hasn't strengthened his club any. If he did they'd kick the Yankees out of the league. It's hard enough for them to keep peace among the other clubs, the way things are now.

Most baseball men believe the Browns slipped off a fast one on the Tigers when they obtained "Hime" Manush and Lou Blue in exchange for Harry Rice and Elam Vangilder. Manush and Blue are two rattling good players. Rice is a youngster and a better than fair outfielder, but Vangilder is a second rate pitcher.

The Senators added offensive strength in George Sisler whom they purchased from the Browns for $25,000. Sisler may prove to be the best buy of several baseball years.

The Athletics have let Zack Wheat and Ty Cobb go, but have obtained a brilliant youngster in Ossie Orwoll, pitcher-outfielder, from Milwaukee.

Red Sox Buy Williams
The Red Sox bought Ken Williams, one time home run king of the American league, from the Browns.

The White Sox haven't strengthened any. They paid $123,000 for Chalmers Cisse, the Portland star, when they already had three short-stops.

The Cubs have added reinforcements and are going to kick up a lot of dust in the National league race next season. Cuyler, added to Stephenson, Webb, Wilson and Heathcote, gives the Cubs just about the best outfield in the league.

The Pirates have plugged the gap at second by the acquisition of "Sparky" Adams.

The Robins will have a new fielder in Blaisont, recalled from the International league; Riconda, formerly with the Braves; Crawford, bought from Boston for $20,000 and Friberg, former Cub, caught in the draft.

The Giants' only important catch was "Lefty" O'Doul, slugger out of the field from the Coast league.

The Cards acquired Mokon, outfielder, Cooney, infielder, and Claude Jonnard, catcher, from the Phillies and bought Frank Gibson, catcher, from the Braves, but none of them are prospective regulars.

The Phillies got Jimmy Ring, pitcher, and John Schulte, catcher, from the Cards.

CUE CHAMPION. CHALLENGER IN CLASH TONIGHT

NEW YORK, Dec. 19.—Two kings of the billiard universe, Welker Cochran and Jacob Schaefer, will begin a 1500 point struggle for the professional 18.2 balking championship of the world in the grand ballroom of the Hotel Pennsylvania tonight. This conflict of cut artistry, the major metropolitan billiard contest of the winter, has aroused keener interest than any similar duel for many years.

Cochran will be defending his championship against a former titleholder, son of Old Jake the wizard, who has surpassed even the records of his illustrious father.

This is the first time in history that a championship will be decided in five blocks of 300 points each. In titular matches of the past, the blocks have been of greater length. Cochran, although free from mowry is skeptical over the curtailed blocks, believing that some startling and unlooked for play may be witnessed as a result.

One block will be contested tonight.

ORANGE COUNTY CLUB DEFEATED BY CLEVELAND

"Rube" Ellis' Orange County baseball club lost its first start in the Triple A league, 4 to 2, to the Cleveland Colored All-Stars at the Fair grounds yesterday. It was a stirring mound duel with both Moore and Harney working in gilded manner.

The Clevelanders wormed over three runs on two hits and two errors in the first stanza and picked up another in the third on an error and two singles but Moore, formerly with the Olinda club, held the Negroes to one bingle the rest of the route.

Harney was invincible until the seventh when the Orange county standard-bearers nicked him for two runs on two hits and an error.

SOUTHERN GRID SQUAD OFF FOR PACIFIC COAST

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Dec. 19.—A football horde from the south was bearing down on Los Angeles today to engage an all-star grid-iron team of the west in the Coliseum here next Monday.

Sprinkled liberally with stars who have made this season's All-American, the Dixie collegians are expected to furnish lively opposition to the Western aggregation, which has been recruited from institutions from Washington to Southern California. The proceeds will go to charity.

The Southerners are represented by a group of backfield stars with the triple-threat complex, according to the advance notices received here.

Billy Spears of Vanderbilt, Roy Estes of the University of Georgia, Johnny Meanville, Tulane and Jack McDowell of North Carolina State are the versatile ball carriers. Spears was included on a number of All-American selections at quarterback.

Spotts of Washington and Lee and Ed Crowley, Georgia Tech's captain, are carried as the first string ends. Middlekauff of Florida, Dodson of Tennessee and Cohen of Mississippi are smashing fullbacks, who will be seen in action.

"Babe" Pendleton, Whittier college star, Elmer Tesreau of Washington, Dave Luby of Oregon State and Howard Elliott of U. S. C. are the backfield luminaries of the western aggregation.

EAST, WEST TEAMS START FOOTBALL PRACTICE

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 19.—Andy Kerr's group of All-American football players from the east and "Babe" Hollingsberry's stars of the west began practice today for their annual classic next Monday.

The eastern squad arrived in San Francisco yesterday and was met at Sacramento by a delegation of local Shrine officials, in charge of the benediction game.

The western squad today had virtually all assembled here and will also go through a preliminary workout today.

'RED TEAM' TO MEET DRILLERS FOR CAL. TITLE

County Eleven, Outplayed In First Half, Rallies To Lick Saints, 20-13

BY GRIDDER

"Shorty" Smith, the miracle man of Fullerton, and his "Big Red Team" were the interscholastic football champions of Southern California today following their surprising and spectacular victory over Santa Maria high school, 20 to 13, in the last lap of a grueling elimination series at Wrigley field, Los Angeles, last Saturday afternoon.

The champions of the Orange County league, improving with every start, meet the Bakersfield Drillers for the state title in the Los Angeles Coliseum next Saturday. Bakersfield ran roughshod over the Indians in an early season game but Smith's henchmen have come along so fast in the last month that a Fullerton victory would not be particularly surprising.

This is the first year since 1921, when Santa Ana's great machine, led by such heroes as "Jeff" Cravath, Bart Cook, Don Williams, Newt Stark, Earl Jabs and "Beny" Wilcox, swept all before it, that an Orange county team has annexed the Southern California crown.

Bakersfield reached the finals by dropping San Mateo, state monarchs of 1926, in San Francisco by a 14 to 0 count Saturday.

Fullerton snatched its victory out of impending defeat. The "Big Red Team" got away to a fumbling start that paved the way to a pair of Santa Maria touchdowns but, as "Shorty" Smith teams have done ever since the former Santa Ana broke into the coaching business, Fullerton came back fighting desperately in the second half, scored two touchdowns, fumbled on the 1-yard line to lose another and completely demoralized the Saint who had decisively outplayed them through the first two periods.

Both elevens played a rugged defensive game, with the honors going to the lighter Fullerton team. Both clubs made 13 first downs.

Santa Maria kicked off. Fullerton fumbled on the second play and the Saint had the ball on the Orange county team's 10-yard line and Adams kicked out of immediate danger but Santa Maria kept the ball deep in "Red" territory, finally scoring after a series of reverses and triple passes. Rahbar went across and Haslam kicked goal.

"Reds" Tie Score

Fullerton tied the score about the middle of the second quarter as the result of a bit of poor Santa Maria headwork. Adams had kicked beautifully to the Saints' 1-yard mark and the Northerners attempted a lateral pass, only to fumble, and McElheny fell on the ball back of the line for a touchdown. Hershberger kicked goal.

Santa Maria marched right down the field 54 yards to its second and last touchdown following the next kickoff. Fullerton seemed bewildered by the Saints' lateral passes and Rahbar was not molested when he plunged over for the score to complete this determined ground-gaining. Haslam's try for goal was blocked.

Fullerton outlasted the Saint in the second half. Hershberger went over for a touchdown near the end of the period after the "Reds" had the ball in Santa Maria ground all

IDEA OF RELIEF PITCHERS

Is it wise to use a veteran star pitcher as relief man when some pitcher is faltering in the late innings?

Managers of major league clubs are about evenly divided on the question. There are some who argue it is wisdom to slip the opposition your best bet in an effort to hold a one or two-run lead late in the game.

Others use their pitching ace only as a last resort, where the winning of the game is of vital importance in keeping the club in the race.

I have never seen a greater starting or relief pitcher than Ed Walsh, of the old Chicago White Sox. Walsh, a glutton for work during his career, usually performed in about 50 games during a season, often five or ten more.

I once asked Walsh which he would rather do, start a ball game and finish it or be pressed into service, say three innings, to hold a one-run lead.

"There is nothing harder than relief work," he replied. "I have often worked three innings at top speed, where it was necessary to bear down on every ball pitched, and felt more tired at the finish than after working a regular nine-inning affair."

ALEX HAS SAME IDEA

One of the star pitchers, still in active service, who shares the opinion of Ed Walsh is none other than the great Grover Cleveland Alexander. In his prime, Alexander never demurred to act as pinch pitcher. However, the strain sooner or later, takes its toll and Alexander feels that had he nursed himself along, instead of stepping into every breach that called for relief work, he would be a much better pitcher today.

"There came a time in the career of every pitcher when doing relief work is out of the question," says Alex. "When a youngster, it doesn't appear to be at all difficult, but as a pitcher gets up in years, he finds he is not physically strong enough to so perform.

"Back in 1923 I decided that I was through as a pinch pitcher and since then have rarely appeared in such a role, and then only as a pennant-winning proposition."

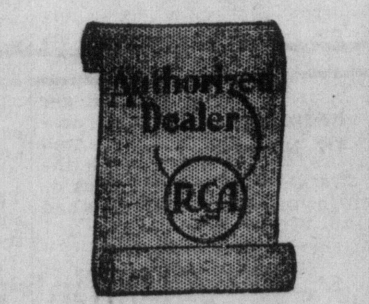

"Since then I have pitched consistently good ball."

"The fact that at 40 years of age I won 20 games last season is, I feel, ample proof of the wisdom of my belief that pinch pitching through the stanza and he placed the point that put his team out in front. Adams intercepted a pass on the Santa Maria 30-yard line to put the Orange county outfit in position for another counter and Adams responded with a pretty pass over the line to Hershberger.

Fullerton nearly scored again in the last few minutes of play when Hill, a substitute, tore the tiring Santa line to pieces with line bucks but he fumbled on the 1-yard mark just before the game ended.

bad for a veteran twirler, not good for any pitcher."

MARBERRY AIDS NATS

Stanley Harris in winning two ennnants for Washington in 1924-5 also proved there is no better way to keep a veteran pitching staff on edge than to relieve them of doing any pinch pitching duties. Harris, with the giant and willng Fred Marberry in reserve, always called on him when any of the regulars faltered, thereby keeping his veteran staff on edge.

In 1926 George Uhle, in an effort to pitch Cleveland to a pennant, worked overtime as a regular and in relief roles. He was able to win the surprisingly large total of 27 games. Yet Uhle paid the penalty.

The greatest pitcher in the American league in 1926 could win only eight games last season, less than one-third his conquests the previous year. . . .

I am inclined to believe that a majority of the managers have been won over to the belief there is nothing quite so necessary to stabilize a pitching staff as a high-class relief twirler, able to go at top speed for two or three innings.

Lopsided Walk

London's Latest

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Lopsided walks call for a lopsided walk since it is necessary to emulate the lines of the new gowns, and mannequins have mastered a new gait to perfection and are mistresses at instructing butantes how to move, after the shion of a ship whose cargo has lifted.

The girl who cannot droop on a downside when she walks is t of luck this season. Many of the most stunning models shown in London have decorations which to the side and the wearers accentuate this effect by their movements.

The demure walk which is deanded by picture frocks has been modified decidedly when the ting gowns are worn.

Voices Ruined

By Cigarettes

PARIS, Dec. 19.—Cocktails and cigarettes re being blamed for taking the music out of women's voices. On the stage, particularly, says Henri Duvernois, a good-humored critic, it is noticeable that actresses are more frequently afflicted with harder, deeper voices and are more often off the boards with throat trouble. Bobbed hair, of course, has been blamed by some for exposing the back of the neck to chill winds, but most agree that hard smoking and the dynamic qualities of the mixed rink are much to blame.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY

UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

It recently was suggested to John J. McGraw that he acquire for the Giants either Ty Cobb or Tris Speaker, the idea being to add a orful, popular player to the pay-roll and some colorful popular lars to the gate receipts.

McGraw turned thumbs down on the plan. He had another one—a new one, particularly, but one which he still favors.

The manager of the Giants wants a Jewish star for his ball club. Believes that the only individual who can offset in a measure the popularity of Babe Ruth in New York City must be of Hebrew extraction. And not very far extracted, either.

When the Giants go to Augusta for spring training, they will take with them two young Jewish ballplayers, either of whom may some develop into the star of Bethlehem of which McGraw dreams.

One of them, Andy Cohen, has been in fast company before, but a farmed out to the International league, where he did exceedingly well in 1927. The other, John Levy, a pitcher, joined the Giants' squad a year, but failed to win a regular berth.

Cohen is an infliender, and with Terry, Hornsby, Jackson and Lindom on the job his chances of breaking through to fame would seem be slight.

Good Jewish ballplayers have been rare.

Tex Rickard, who is a show-man and, like McGraw, knows his w York, has been constantly on the lookout for a good Jewish wweight. They have been rarer than good Jewish ballplayers.

ala Okun is about the best of the lot, but he is a light heavy-light, and he was soundly thrashed the other evening by Leo Lomski.

They tell a story about Rickard's search for a Jewish hockey star, on the ice game became popular in this city and Madison Square den brought out the Rangers.

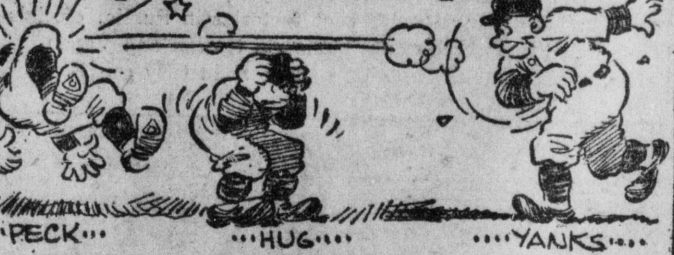

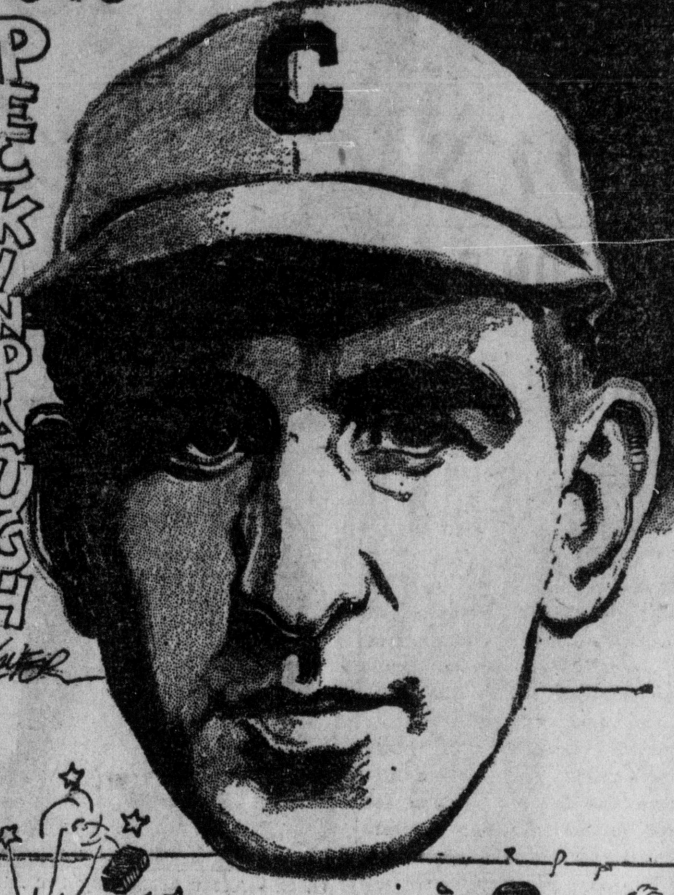

It seems that Tex had the idea of presenting Paul Chabot, the able lie, as Paul Chabotsky.

Being a loyal French-Canadian, Chabot didn't relish the idea. ether did the scribes who found out about it. So the plan fell through.

VICTIM OF INSURRECTION

Roger Peckinpough, newly appointed manager of the Cleveland b of the American league was once the innocent victim of an urrection on the New York Yankees. After an indignation meeting players who wanted to "get" Manager Huggins, in which Peck id no part, the shortstop was traded to Washington.

namely "Chink" Sauers, Willie Lewis, and Bruce Smith. Ed Gloege will be back in the half mile and Bryce Schurr is about all that's left in the mile, with Ellsworth Patterson coming up from the trosh as a miller of ability and Warren Woodruff, who recently won the annual Trojan cross-country run coming as a prospect in the two-mile.

Jack Williams, capable of doing 13 feet 6 inches in the pole vault and Bill Hubbard, national high school champion in 1926 will see the vaulting event pretty well taken care of with Barnes as first-rater. Jim Stewart is the outstanding light in the weights for the Trojans. In the broad jump, Cromwell will have Jesse Hill, last year's sophomore sensation who can do 24 feet 7 inches. Cliff Reynolds and Kaer, if he returns. High jumpers will be Henry Coggeshall and Al Bowen.

From the above it is easy to see that the Trojans are well off in some evntns and as bad off in others. In the pole vault, sprints, hurdles, broad jump and possibly the weights, the Trojans are okay but in other events something will have to be done.

Players Held Meeting

So tense was the feeling against Huggins that a group of players, more than half of the squad, met in the Pullman, other than the one in which Peckinpough had his berth, to take action to overthrow the Huggins dynasty.

The consensus of the red shirts was that Huggins must go and that Peckinpough should succeed him. It was decided that on the return of the Yankees to New York, the matter would be taken up with Colonel Jake Ruppert, owner of the club, and if he didn't accept to their wishes the team would go out on a strike.

It is just possible that some of the boys might have been under a stimulating influence other than a pure, but, regardless, such action was taken.

As is always the case, the affair, supposed to be kept a deep, dark secret, leaked out. Instead of Huggins, who had no part in the insurrection, and who was innocent of the entire affair, was the victim.

Decided On Quick Action

Without going into the ifs and whys of the case, Colonel Jake Ruppert decided on quick action. Although he had nothing against Peckinpough, he was strong for Huggins and figured if Huggins was to succeed, it was best that Peckinpough should go.

It was this state of affairs that caused New York to enter into a three-cornered trade that brought Scott of Boston to New York and sent Peck to Washington.

It wasn't a bad break for Peck at that, since he shared in two world championships in Washington, getting a winner's and loser's share of the money, amounting to something like $10,000 extra.

Had not the popularity of Peckinpough caused the New York players to swear allegiance to him instead of Huggins, he would have missed those two world series at Washington and possibly the big opportunity that is now before him, manager of the Cleveland Indians.

At first Dame Fortune seemed to have been very unkind to Roger Peckinpough in causing his passing from New York, but all is well that ends well. No wit seems the desire of the players that Peckinpough should be a manager has had its reward in his new job.

KLAMATH FALLS, Ore., Dec. 19.—A little dog of nondescript breed is Lakeview's latest hero. Its persistent barking led a searching party to a clump of sagebrush, under which Betty Cynch aged 5, and Elleen Lynch, aged 3, lay clasped in each other's arms fast asleep. ## ORANGE COUNTY HEALTH CAMP SEAL SALE CAMPAIGN MEETS APPROVAL OF ALL PEOPLES

That the Orange county health camp and the Christmas seal sale campaign of its ally, the Tuberculosis association, are meeting with the approval of residents in this section is indicated by the tone of the letters daily pouring in at headquarters of the movement, according to Dr. John Wehrly, president of the organization.

Although the 25,000 seal letters have found their way to homes which often could not make large donations, the desire to help, and the enthusiasm for the health camp work is evident in the majority of cases, he said.

One woman wrote: "I am sorry I can't make this $100 instead of one dollar. I am watching with interest two little boys you had all summer."

Another reply said: "I am in receipt of your circular letter enclosing 100 Christmas seals. I take pleasure in enclosing my check for $5.00 to assist in a small way the continuation of this commendable work."

Many of the letters send money for the seals and, in addition, contain contributions toward making the health camp an all-year preventorium.

A few of the envelopes reach homes in which there is not enough money to spare for helping the white plague campaign, Dr. Wehrly pointed out. But even these people state that they wish they could help.

"And their replies reveal the fact that there is a real need for the anti-tuberculosis work. We hope that these homes can be benefited by the generous contributions Orange county is making in order that the children may be made strong enough to resist the advance of this disease."

He called attention to one of these letters, which said, in part: "I think it a great cause and hope in the future to be able to help, for I have a little boy of my own that isn't strong and needs better food and care than we can always give him."

He explained that this is a home in which the Tuberculosis association can find an opportunity for real service.

"If the boy can be made well and strong through proper food, sunshine and exercises, some day he may be a valued American citizen, able and willing to help other children to build up their resistance to the white plague," he concluded.

Another woman clipped the following poem and sent it with her contribution:

"The little reddish, bluish stamp Enclosed upon thy letter Will do no damage to thy swag And make the world the better."

"The little reddish, bluish stamps Won't hurt thy bankroll's thickness, So don't allow thy mit to cramp. But take a poke at sickness."

"Thy little reddish, bluish thing, BUY, for the love of Moses 'Tis up to thee to rise and swing Upon tuberculosis."

GARDEN GROVE, Dec. 19.—The Community Men's brotherhood will meet at the Baptist church bungalow Tuesday evening. Supper will be served at 8:30 o'clock. The Rev. Earl Edwards will give an address on an airplane trip to Palestine and back in half an hour. Special music will be furnished.

The monthly meeting of the Firemen will be held Tuesday night at 7:30 o'clock in the Y. M. C. A. hall. Reorganization of the company, signing of the by-laws and election of officers will take place at this meeting.

The Garden Grove and Orange Lions clubs held a joint meeting at Orange Wednesday evening, the meeting taking the place of the regular noonday luncheon. Following the dinner hour, an interesting program was enjoyed by those present.

A family reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Harper Sunday. The event celebrated Mr. Harper's birthday, the birthday of his grand-daughter, June Harper, and the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Cridland.

A turkey dinner was served at 6 o'clock to the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. Earl Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Harper and daughter, June, and Miss Lillian Wickerstrom, of Los Angeles; Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Cridland and two children of Altadena; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Harper and son, Leland, of Garden Grove.

The Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Ocheltree returned Thursday from Blythe, where they spent several days with their son, Paul Ocheltree.

Mrs. H. B. McLeod attended a luncheon at the Long Beach Country club Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. McLure, who recently arrived here from Brooklyn, N. Y., is enjoying a visit with her sister, Mrs. J. M. Glibreath.

Rus: Bumgardner and Eugene Shackelford arrived home Wednesday from Davis, where they have been attending college.

Miss Ellen Dodson has gone to Pasadena, where she will spend the holiday vacation.

The guest list included Anna May Robinson, Jessie Ira, Gladys Hurst, Hortense Shuntie, Donna Nelson, Mildred Whittall, Gladys Williamson, Maxine Preston, Ruth Friend, Ethel Osborn, Charlotte Duc, Genevieve White, Evelyn Gilmore, Stanley Champion, Glenn Shady, Eugene Duc, Jesse Haktin, Chick Wilson, Floyd Anderson, Clarence Double, Harry Stephenson, Norman Rose, Ira DeBusk, Kenneth Gilchrist, Ralph Shafer, Roy Mitchell, Carl Whitefield, Harry Anderson, Ed Sommers, John Black, Sidney Schwartz, Roscoe Tinsley, and the four co-hostesses, Marguerite McCormack, Alma Vandruft, Lois Vandruft and Ruby Criley.

Lois Treese celebrated her tenth birthday anniversary Friday with a party at her home, where she entertained a number of her young friends. During these hours games furnished a happy time for the children. Eva Preston won the girls' prize in a corn candy guessing contest, while Coy Rogers won the boys' prize.

Guests at Lois' party were Roberta Irwin, Toshiko Furuta, Juanita Rogers, Sumi, Ena Preston, Zelma Page, Eula, Ingle, Mazelle Turner, Coy Rogers, Kenneth Vandruft, Billie Bates, Jack Treese, the honoree, Lois Treese and her cousin, Billie Hopkins, her aunt, Mrs. Hopkins, and grandmother, Mrs. A. C. Portz, of Long Beach, and mother, Mrs. W. P. Treese, and Miss Alma Vandruft.

YORBA LINDA

YORBA LINDA, Dec. 19.—Mrs. C. H. Eichler was hostess to the Young Matrons Bridge club at her home Wednesday. Following luncheon cards were enjoyed, prizes being awarded to Mrs. Grover Beal, Mrs. A. P. Yerington and Mrs. Jack Curtin.

Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Hoben were hosts to the Friday Evening Bridge club at their home this week. Members present included Mr. and Mrs. Grover Beal, Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Tutton, Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Selover, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Eichler, Mr. and Mrs. Warrick Murray, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Paine and Mr. and Mrs. George Myers.

The local grammar school held its Christmas program Friday in the school patio. There was a splendid program with each grade contributing.

There was a good attendance at the "community sing" held in the Woman's clubhouse Monday evening under the direction of Byron Deshler. Another is to be held next Monday evening.

Little Mary Neely is convalescing nicely from a broken arm, sustained at play a few days ago, when she tripped and fell.

E. C. Townsend had a good attendance at the formal opening of his new hardware store.

YOUNG MEN OF JAPAN BUDGET Y. M. C. A. PLAN GIVEN BOOST XMAS PROGRAM FOR NEW YEAR

Christmas comes but once a year, and the members of the E. C. Club, the Young Men's Division of the Y. M. C. A. are certainly going to take advantage of the opportunity to put on special holiday activities in the club. At the last regular meeting of the club the members unanimously voted to put on a special Christmas program this coming Thursday night, December 22nd.

Jess Shiffer was elected to the office as Chairman of the Program Committee and Earle Hankemeier was chosen for the chairman of the Membership Committee. The Christmas Program scheduled for this coming week's meeting is to be under the direct supervision of the Executive Committee with Shiffer as chairman.

The committee has not outlined the program for the evening as yet but Ted Jesse, vice president of the club states that the dining room will be decorated for the occasion and that Santa Claus will be there in person, not a motion picture, and will have gifts for everyone present.

Hankemeier strongly urges all of the club members to make a concerted and individual effort to make this gathering, which will be the last one to be held this year, a one hundred per cent turnout, and along with this declaration he has issued a very strong invitation to every young man of Santa Ana and vicinity to come and enjoy the activities of the club itself.

The objective of the club is mainly self-improvement through the means of entertainment, discussion, outside speakers and recreation. The officers and directors of the Y. M. C. A. have thrown wide the entire building for the use of members of the E. C. Club and several of them have already availed themselves of the use of the gym, showers and swimming pool.

Other officers of the club include Don L. Mack, president and Orville Hinegardner, secretary and treasurer. Shiffer is the sergeant-at-arms.

The club membership roster has reached a total of about twenty-five and Hankemeier states that there is room for a good number more, as the membership quotas has been set at fifty.

The Day's News in Pictures

STARTS LIFE LIGHT
—Mrs. Celia Taub, of the Bronx, New York City, has given birth, prematurely, to a baby girl, said to be the smallest baby ever born. She weighed a pound and a quarter at birth. Mrs. Taub is shown in the photo with her nurse, Miss Margaret C. O'Connor, at the Mt. Hope hospital. Inset is a view of the baby.

FLIGHT CAREFULLY PLANNED—Long distance flights of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh never were of the "hit and miss" variety. He has planned 'em all, carefully. In this photo he is seen at the office of the assistant chief of naval aeronautics studying maps before setting out on his scheduled Mexican flight.

SOVIET AGENTS LEAVE U. S.—After arranging for American participation in the bidding on construction of seven sugar beet factories in Russia, officials of the Soviet sugar trust have sailed from San Francisco enroute home via Hawaii and Japan. The agents have toured all the sugar growing states of the union. Left to right they are F. P. Wilga, A. Korhoff, E. V. Nekrashevitch and P. Lukianoff.

SECURE NEEDED PASSPORT—Senator Pat Harrison, left, of Mississippi, and Senator Kenneth McKellar, right, of Tennessee, snapped with Lemuel H. Doty, of Biloxi, Miss. Doty enlisted the senators' aid in securing a passport home for his son, Bennett J. Doty, 27-year-old boy-adventurer and soldier of the French Foreign Legion, sentenced to be shot for desertion, but given an honorary discharge when the state department interceded.

SANTA CLAUS' HELPER—Little Marian Tibbitts, of San Francisco, has done her share to bring happiness to others on Christmas Day. With other children she staged a show in her backyard and collected toys for distribution among San Francisco's poor. Marian is shown in the photo with Punch and Judy dolls used in the performance.

NEW PLANE FOR AIR STAFF—A view of a new three-seated Loening amphibian plane delivered at Bolling Field, Washington, D. C., for the use of members of the army headquarters staff. It is of the type used on the Pan-American good-will flight.

"LYRICAL AMBASSADOR"—Maurice Capitaine, French tenor, sent by the French government to represent the art of France in the opening grand opera festival week of the Washington National opera. It was the singer's first appearance in America.

AIR ENTHUSIAST—Mrs. Trubee Davison, wife of the assistant secretary of war for aviation, has some of her husband's enthusiasm for aviation. She's seen here climbing into a plane at Bolling Field, Washington, D. C., for one of her frequent flights over the national capital.

JAPANESE TWINS—Twins in Japanese families are a rarity, according to Captain M. Kobayashi, in charge of the Japanese social center of the Salvation Army at San Francisco. But he presents a pair, Matsuye, left, and Takeyo, right, said to be the only Japanese twins in the San Francisco bay region. They are in the care of the Salvation Army.

CLAIMS BIRDS TALK—Dr. William M. Patterson, research worker for Columbia University, New York City, believes that birds actually talk when singing. He's seen here with an African finch, on which he is making experiments, and which he claims has a vocabulary of more than 300 words.

Mince Meat
Is Easily
MadeBy SISTER MARY
NEA Service Writer

Mince pie seems almost as necessary to holiday festivities as holly and Christmas trees and red ribbons and silver stars. So let's make up several quarts as soon as the fruit cake is out of the way and safely stored.

There's no mystery about good mince meat, even the most inexperienced cook can make her own—fragrant, spicy and delicious.

To make the super-fine mince meat every housekeeper desires, the best quality of ingredients must be used—the best lean beef, the finest dried fruits, spices and flavored apples. But don't add nuts. With the meat and suet, nuts are superfluous and distinctly out of place.

Apples Are Traditional
Apples are traditional in mince pie and according to an old superstition portend health and happiness for those who eat the pie. Each member of the family should stir the mince meat during its cooking. This insures general good luck for the whole family. And at Christmas dinner, save room for a piece of the mince pie! For to refuse it means that "bad luck" will follow and overtake the refuser during the coming year.

The following rule makes about four quarts of mince meat. Any part of the beef can be used including the heart and tongue. Of course the liver is too strongly flavored to be chosen. Any bits of gristle should be carefully trimmed away after cooking and fat is supplied by the suet.

Mince Meat
Two pounds lean beef, 3-4 pound beef suet, 4 pounds apples, 2 pounds seeded raisins, 1 pound cleaned currants, 1 pound shredded citron, 1-2 pound candied orange peel, 1-2 pound candied lemon peel, 2 pounds brown sugar, 2 quarts sweet cider or 3 cups boiled cider, 1 cup molasses, 1 cup beef steak, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 nutmeg (grated), 1 tablespoon ground cinnamon, 2 teaspoons ground cloves, 2 teaspoons ground allspice, 1 cup preserved cherries or strawberries.

Cook meat until tender in boiling water to cover. Add water as necessary and remove scum as it rises. When meat is tender boil rapidly to reduce stock to about one cup. Let cool in stock. When cool, remove from liquid and carefully trim away any bits of fat, gristle or bone. Put lean meat through food chopper and strain stock. Mince suet very finely and add to chopped meat. Pare, core and chop apples. Add to first mixture. Chop half the raisins. Add to first mixture. Chop half Combine all ingredients except preserves, which are added just before removing from fire. Cook about one and one-half hours and seal in sterilized jars.

You Can Halve It
Half the recipe can be made and fruits can be added as wanted. But apples are usually used in the proportion of twice as much apple as meat. Lemon and orange juice as well as grape juice and strong coffee infusion can be used in place of cider if cider is not available. Cooking sherry and brandy can be added. In this event reduce the amount of salt. The sweet spiced vinegar from sweet pickles can take the place of cider with a jar of orange marmalade replacing half the candied orange peel.

More spices may be liked but these can be added at baking.

Style Hints

SPARKLING SUSPENDERS
A flame colored chiffon gown has a jeweled girdle that has jeweled straps, like suspenders, extended up over the shoulders.

BLACK MARQUISITE
A new Lelong gown is fashioned of black marquisite, with modernistic loops for trimming, made of black cire lace braid.

FUR CUFFS
A tan velvet evening wrap has a furless scarf collar and elbow-deep luxurious pouch cuffs of sable.

DINNER JACKET
Designed for the suburbanite who shops, then stays to dine, is a fancy jeweled jacket that can be slipped over the daytime dress for semi-formal wear.

SATIN TULLE
New and charming is a black gown of tulle, with a moulded bodice, girde and smashing side bow of black satin.

THREE-QUARTERS
A beige sports coat of shaved baby lamb has loose lines with a chic flare and is cut three-quarter length.

TRANSPARENT HEM
A silver and green broadcated period frock has silver lace giving it a wide transparent hem.

Soon all the dolls were fixed up this way, and I will let you pair right, and then one little Tinymite ran to the door and shouted, "Here comes Santa Claus again. I hope that he is satisfied with what we've done. We've surely tried to do our best, 'cause after all we're honest working men." Then Santa came and said, "Well, boys, I'm surely proud of all the toys that you have made for me thus far. You've helped me quite a lot. The dolls are ready now to ship upon my merry Christmas trip. The little girls who get them will be happy, like as not."

"We're glad you like the way we do," said Scouty, "if it pleases you, perhaps you'll take us some place else where we can work some more. We'll work right on, and never put, at least until we're all tired out. We all are very curious to see what is in store."

"That's fine," said Santa, "Come

EAT THE THEATER

WEST COAST-WALKER

Can you imagine the suave and debonair John Gilbert as a cub reporter, not so interested in his work but what he has time to fall desperately in love with the society editor, and become absolutely the most awkward and self-conscious creature you ever saw, in his first evening clothes?

It is from such a lightly humorous beginning that the picture, "Man, Woman and Sin," at the West Coast-Walker theater, grows and develops into one of the strongest and most compelling dramas recently presented at the local theater. Gilbert's work is as satisfyingly direct as anything he has done, and opposite him plays the delectable Jeanne Eagels, famous for her "Sadie Thompson" in "Rain," now essaying her first work on the silver screen, and storing a marked success.

The "Folliettes" idea of Fanchon and Marco, adds interest to the bill, and Doris Walker has as nimble a set of toes—ten of them—as have ever twinkled before our eyes. She also has a sweet voice and heaps of personality, and a capable aide in Herbert Hoey. The Tommy Atkins sextette, "Skooter" Hartwell and her graceful dance to Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," and Buddy Doyle complete a most enjoyable idea.

YOST BROADWAY THEATER

Silk stockings are all over the Yost Broadway theater this week, even on the screen where Laura La Plante is starring in "Silk Stockings."

This is a gay, frivolous farce of the type which has brought stardom to the beautiful blonde. Movie audiences prefer them if the attitude of the patrons at the theater last night is any criterion and we feel that it is.

The story concerns itself with the very delightful experiences of a young married couple who are plunged into various hilarious situations. John Harron, as the star's husband is excellent as, indeed, are the whole cast. The story and direction draw the same rating which combines to make this one of those ludicrous yet refreshing human comedies which no one who enjoys motion pictures can afford to miss.

WEST END THEATER

Faced by the horrible realization that he has made an orphan of a small boy in an effort to enforce the law, Tom Corrigan, the hero of "The Desert Pirate," now showing at the West End theater, turns in his badge and starts out with the homeless youth for a new country.

That is the beginning of this thrilling drama of the old west, starring Tom Tyler, the intrepid ace of the saddle. It is a story that steps out of the regular path of western tales and gives the audience a rapid fire of tense action with a human touch.

MURPHY'S COMEDIANS

"Saintly Hypocrites," the remarkable dramatization of life from the pen of the well known playwright, Charles F. Harrison, opened last night at Murphy's theater at Orana.

While the entire cast is well chosen, C. William Booth is especially well suited for the leading male part, that of a young minister who finds himself confronted with the problem of preaching the gospel according to the dictates of his own heart and suffering the consequences of allowing two or three hypocrites to further their own ends by running the church their way.

FAMOUS "ALMANAK" SENT TO READERS

HAGERSTOWN, Md., Dec. 19.—The Hagerstown Almanac is out. This unique publication, established in 1797, carries over the fireside companion days of a century ago to the thousands of farm homes in Maryland, Virginia and other Atlantic seaboard states.

Besides a "conjecture of the weather" for all of the 366 days of 1928, the quaint volume contains: "The rising, setting and eclipses of the sun and moon, the phases, places and southing of the moon; the aspects of the planets; the rising, setting and southing of the most conspicuous planets and fixed stars; the equation of time; with a variety of useful and entertaining matter, anecdotes, a list of courts etc."

The publication contains a formal notice that the "Hagerstown

Town and Country Almanac" will be continued by the family of John Gruber, who published it for many years. Gruber died several months ago.

JACK LOCKWELL

By Patten

"Bare fists, then!" roared Maddox. "I can lick you any way!" "Get the girls out," said somebody. "It's going to be something they shouldn't see," Lockwell took off his Indian mask and head-dress. Maddox was ready and eager. "No dirty fouling!" cried Darling, who had unmasked also.

The fight was savage, but one-sided for about two minutes. Maddox, swinging wildly and lacking science, charged into a barrage of blows. Jack hit him at will.

When Maddox tried to follow up and hit Jack again, the latter side-stepped and gave him a haymaker. The big freshman went down, and Darling counted him out. "I had to do it," said the victor, as though ashamed of what he had done. "That settled it," crowed Darling. "Not much!" cried Hargon, stripping off mask and coat. "I'm here to take his place!" Some of the queries placed before them were met with a puzzled silence for a time, but many of them were answered promptly.

"What other officers besides the judges of the supreme court are appointed by the president?" one of the men was asked and passed the problem up to a woman, who stated that there are 10 cabinet officers who are selected by the chief executive.

"How long do they serve?" This in turn was shifted to another, and so on, until the correct answer was obtained.

S. A. GIRL TEACHER OF MARION PARKER

asked for the younger of the two Parker girls, evidently not knowing that Marian and Mardele Parker were twin sisters. He presented to the principal of the school that he was from the bank in which Mr. Parker was connected, and that he had called for a girl because of a serious injury to her father.

Miss Gall formerly was a teacher in the Santa Ana schools.

IS BROKEN INTO

burglars who broke into the home of Elmer Haas, Yorba Linda, yesterday night, while members of the family were away from home, stole a valuable diamond ring, according to a report made to the sheriff's office today.

Entrance into the home was made through a window which was jammed.

The attempted burglary at the home of Isaac N. Niswander, in the same neighborhood at Yorba Linda, was blocked when the thief was frightened away by the arrival of members of the family, it is reported. Nothing was taken.

WAS IT JEALOUSY?

Lizzie and Elizabeth met head-on, colliding in the city of their birth, Detroit. The steel and rubber children of Henry Ford, Model A and Model T, came together in anger and possibly jealousy and had various of their anatomy bent, broken and bruised. The dispatches do not tell whether the elder Lizzie or the younger Elizabeth suffered the worse in the encounter but we fear for the younger member of the family for you must remember Lizzie, old dame, has had experience in this varied kind of performance that the younger child knows nothing about.

AN OUNCE OF PREVENTION

It is easy to think of how things should be done afterwards and it is easy to find fault with those in authority after such a catastrophe has occurred as the sinking of the submarine S-4.

Just as the submarine must keep its whereabouts secret during times of conflict for its greater safety, so for its safety during times of peace it should let its whereabouts be known. It seems that some simple device could be used to notify any ship within quite a radius that a submarine was rising, but this evidently has never occurred to those in authority.

A big corporation would have had some such device in operation which would have saved these men from this terrible death but it seems that the government investigates after the loss of life. And in the case of submarine disasters there is considerable doubt of the vigor and zeal of the investigation even after the awful impetus furnished by a large number of tragic deaths because it has been two years since the sinking of the S-51.

MUTT IS DEAD

Mutt is dead. This may not mean a whole lot to hundreds and thousands of adults and yet we have seen thousands of adults watching him, with great interest, but children have watched Mutt as he lay on his little board island in the park pool, immovable, blinking, for hours and hours, the children in hundreds and literally in thousands. Occasionally he would make a rapid movement and with his trip-hammer and lightning-moving jaw, he would snatch a bird or a turtle and close his jaws down upon it and instantly become the sleepy, mulish-acting, apparently dead organism.

From year to year there was a perceptible increase in Mutt's length and bust measurement but he grew so slowly that it was only by comparison in memory that one realized it. But he was so interesting and attracted so many that he was known to all for miles around. But he had to be taken in from the park pool to winter quarters in the basement of the city bastille and here, surrounded by wire netting he was placed again in a pool and the other day the pool was filled to overflowing. He got out of the pool and broke through the wire netting and all feared to go into the basement because Mutt had grown to be thirteen feet long, his tail was nearly as powerful as his great saw-toothed jaw, and the report is they found him dead.

We suspect that there was some design that caused this result, but we will miss him. Mutt of the cartoon will not take his place. The pool will not be the same. We cannot visualize the pool and the iron fence and the crowds around it without Mutt and yet we never saw him move. We had to take other people's word for it. He was interesting but not lovable. He was slow except with his tail and jaws. He was probably homesick most of the time though he afforded interest and amusement which took homesickness from many people.

Mutt was an alligator, kept in the pool of our city park in our former home in Elyria, Ohio. We have just read of his demise.

THE NEW TURKEY

There is no country in this world that has been so completely wrenched from its early customs and traditions as Turkey. Turkey at the close of the war was what we usually call down and out. She was financially bankrupt. All her European territory was taken from her, except the narrow littoral which includes Constantinople; and that was put under international control. Syria and Palestine was given to France and to England respectively. Smyrna and the adjacent territory in Asia Minor was ceded to Greece. Armenia and the Hedjaz in Arabia became independent states.

But Turkey never signed the treaty that was imposed upon her; and in due time, under the leadership of Mustafa Kemal, she drove the Greeks out of Smyrna and was granted fuller control in Constantinople. Establishing a republican form of government and a new seat of government at Ankara, the new leaders began to reform the whole of society. Women were put on an equality with men, and all restrictions of dress and station were removed. The authority of the Mohammedan religion was destroyed by the abolition of the Caliphate which has existed as a supreme power since the days of Mohammed. The schools have been thoroughly secularized. Not a scrap of religious teaching of any sort is permitted in the schools, either public or private. The right of other nations to try all their own nationals in Turkish territory was repudiated.

All this has been done by a nation that was completely defeated. Yet she has come out stronger than when she threw her fortunes in with the central powers. Turkey, from a backward medievalism has suddenly come to be a modern state, with a spirit of progress which is quite in contrast with some of the more advanced nations of Europe. It now looks as if the new Turkey will take its place among the forward looking nations of the world, destined to make a contribution to international life at once wholesome and beneficent.

A woman in Kansas City is earning her own way, sewing, and claims to be 106 years old. The dispatches do not now say as to whether she is forced to wear glasses. As she has been doing this for many years, it is an indication that eyes are not ruined by using them.

The Value of Education

Fresno Republican

Sometimes when our young students wonder why they are being given an opportunity of education, and when their teachers are wondering about the same thing, they would do well to turn to Addison's value of an education.

Addison considered "a human soul without education like marble in the quarry, which shows none of its inherent beauties until the skill of the polisher fetches out the colors, makes the surface shine and discovers every ornamental cloud, spot and vein that runs through the body of it. Education, after the same manner, when it works upon a noble mind, draws out to view every latent virtue and perfection, without which such helps are never able to make their appearance."

This is stating the case succinctly, indeed. It ought to be put to more general use than it is.

Soup, Salad and a Dessert
Would Complete Good Meal

San Francisco Chronicle

While a conference of American chefs meeting in Chicago is trying to devise a more standardized American menu the cooks of southern France are also advising the world to simplify its cuisine. One well-cooked palatable dish, the Provencal cooks say, makes a meal. And as an example they cite cassoulet a la Languedocienne. This primitive dish if properly prepared requires very little else on the table. It is made of white beans, goose, onions, tomatoes, beefsteak, fresh pork and pork sausage. It seems difficult to believe that a dish so simple contains enough for human sustenance. But in the interest of simple living it might be worth trying. If the Chicago conference of chefs adopts it we would suggest the addition of another ingredient. Or perhaps it would be better to serve the other ingredient on the side. Yes; bicarbonate of soda.

Truants

Pomona Progress-Bulletin

Some people may imagine that school children do not "play hooky" as they did in former years. School attendance officers are more strict and are all the time rounding up the children and getting the truants back at the desk where they belong.

Yet recent figures show there are 45,000 truants a year in New York city, and most cities and towns may have about the same proportion. A recent speaker in New York remarked that from these truants the criminal class of the future will be drawn. The boy who runs away from school today has begun to break the laws of the state.

Any tendency to truancy should be curbed early in the life of a child. The idling away of precious time goes hand in hand with shirking duty and eventually results in a disregard for law, order and system.

Parents are responsible for truancy in many cases, by allowing children to stay out for frivolous reasons. When absences are allowed for such causes, the children get the idea that school attendance is not important.

A Workday Hero

Imperial Valley Press

There is nothing so terrible as a crowd stricken with sudden fright. Under such condition men and women who normally have full control of themselves, become maddened, unthinking animals, possessed of only one feeling—self-preservation.

The nation has had many horrible examples of the tragedies resulting from a crowd gone berserk.

Saturday a young moving picture operator in Oakland had the opportunity to set a theater crowd panic-stricken, or to save it from destruction. Keeping his head he chose the latter. Discovering a fire practically inside the theater, he shut off his machine, strode to the edge of the balcony; asked the audience for its attention and coolly told them that because of a fire several blocks away it would be better for them to leave the theater.

The nonchalant manner in which he addressed them reassured the audience, and they departed in safety. A young girl organizer in the theater helped the good work along by striking up an old school-day march which the audience recognized and which helped it to control its senses.

It was not until practically all were out of the theater and a few of the laggards learned that the fire was in the theater building, that anything like panic arose.

Unquestionably Young Paxton's coolness averted a terrible tragedy. One shudders to think what might have happened had he lost his head and shouted the single word "fire." He is pretty much the sort of man Kipling describes in "It."

FEW PARENTS ABLE TO SEE THEIR CHILD CRITICALLY

One of the primary factors of the scientific mind is the ability to observe critically, or, in other words, actually to see when one looks. This involves not only looking, but knowing what one is looking for.

Few parents are able to observe their children critically, scientifically, or objectively. The ability to see comes with practice.

In one of the mental tests, a person looks at a group of objects scattered about on a table for one minute, and then after being away for five minutes, attempts to write down the number and the names of the objects seen. With practice, one becomes able to name more and more of the objects seen.

Signs of Growth

In observing the child, the mother should look for indications of growth and development and not for imperfections and irregularities. It is easy to pick flaws and blemishes. It is more important to discover progress and to encourage it.

Encouraging progress is likely to cause the disappearance of some character traits that are not considered progressive. True perspective comes only with seeing the child as a whole and not with viewing protuberances or exaggerations.

Some things are essential and others rather irrelevant. Occasionally, a child will repeat a naughty word heard on the street. Emphasis on the word is likely to cause repeated usage; disregard may result in abandonment.

Some of the traits that are much admired in a small child eventually develop into traits of adult life that are odious. A five or six-year-old girl who makes a pert or smart reply may be considered cute; the same reply made when the child is fourteen years of age is likely to result in punishment.

Too much encouragement of smartness in the young child invariably results in continued smartness or may be called "smartaleckness" in later life.

Self-dependence, aggressiveness, stubbornness and slowness are traits capable of modification under careful observation and study. But it should be emphasized again that the observation must be objective and intelligent, not merely blind study and approval.

AT CHRISTMAS TIME

In times like these
Of Christmas trees
And tinsel and of toys,
Of little girls
With pretty curls,
And also little boys,
It's hard to stick to common sense
And balance income with expense.

A business man
May scheme and plan
And dole his dollars out;
May fume and fret
O'er gross and net
To know what he's about,
But where's the dad at Christmas time
Who wants to reckon every dime?

I know I ought
To give a thought
To cost and overhead,
And management
And six per cent
And figures black and red,
But who on earth would want to see
A cost accountant's Christmas tree?

Though stores and shops
Need checks and stops
To keep the balance true,
No rule of three
Shall hinder me
In all I want to do,
Let business men subtract and add,
When Christmas comes, I'm just a dad!

The Philosophy of Defeat

The president of a large eastern university was called upon the other day to speak at a football banquet. The season was over and it had not been what coaches would call a "complete success."

The school had lost more than half its games. The players had fought hard, but met superior teams in nearly all the games. The president said:

"Our team has not been made up of iron men, just human beings. Even if it was possible to repeat last year's record, glorious as it was, heaven forbid! We would be swamped by boys who want athletics and not education. The defeats have been good for us. Defeats are life. Not a man on earth always succeeds."

These are wise words. It is easy to lose life's real perspectives when your team is unbeaten, when it has rolled up scores superior to every other team in its district, when it has found most of its games easy, when its record outshines the records of each other.

A "bad season," too, brings out finer qualities in the team and its supporters than a walkaway ever can bring. Losses bring a closer loyalty, rather than the disposition to boast, and defeats bring the knowledge that fighting qualities must be improved.

There must be these defeats in school and in life to balance careers. To be beaten when doing our level best is hard to take, but the setback betrays weaknesses that easy victories never would reveal.

Barbs By Tom Sims

Some men are born to fame, and others give daughters in companionate marriage.

A Chicago couple has been divorced after fifty years of married life. Well, they did give it a trial, anyway.

Little Benny's
Note Book

My cousin Artie was around for supper yesterday, and me and him being the Benny and Artie Detective Agency, and after supper me and him was out in the turnt hall pretending to be looking for clues, and my sister Gladis went upstairs with a square wite box tied around with ribbons on the outside, Artie whispering, G wizz partner, on the trail.

And we snuck up to Gladis's room in back of each other, and the box was on her bed, and Gladis was looking at her face in the mirror like somebody that didn't know whether to take some powder off or put some on, me saying, Hay Gladis, did you know we was the 2 greatest detectives in the world?

No, I didn't know it, how do you do, I'm sorry to meet you, must you really go rite away, that too bad, Gladis sed.

Being a hint for use to get out, only we didn't take it, me saying, Well that's who we are, and if we can tell you what kind of candy is in that box will you give us each a peec?

Go ahead, geas, Gladis sed, and I sed, Chocklits.

No, Gladis sed, and Artie sed, Bon bons, and Gladis sed, Rong, and I sed, Assorted chocklits and bon bons mixed, and she sed, Absolutely not, and Artie sed, Carmels, and she sed, Far from it, and I sed Mullasses candy, and she sed, Your mits away, and Artie sed, Glassy nuts, and she sed, Nothing like it, and I sed, Candy froot, and Gladis said, Your not even warm, and I sed, Well good nite holey smokes that all the kinds there is, and Artie sed, Can we smell it just one smell appece for a clew?

Well, that more than most people would let you do, but go ahead and smell, Gladis sed. Wich we did, each smelling one short smell. Being enuff, me saying, Aw heck, soap, and Artie saying, Perfume, soap, good nite.

Hee hee, who gets the first bite, Gladis sed, and I sed, You do, come on partner, we found out wat it was, that's all we care anything about.

And we wawked out looking even more independent than wat we felt.

CURRENT COMMENT

By CHESTER H. ROWELL

ANYBODY who can make the Mexican congress cheer for Coolidge ought to have the job of Ambassador for life. That was "Lindy's" achievement. He is, of course, the supreme illustration of the value of personal popularity. Because he has done a big thing, because everybody likes him, and because he conducts himself with tactfulness, dignity and charm, he is the ideal messenger of international understanding.

THIS unique combination of opportunity and fitness does not happen twice. But it is a suggestion of what may and should happen in a broader way. Frankly, one of the reasons America is unpopular in Mexico is the sort of Americans we have too often sent there. Some of them have, to be sure, been men of power, but they were suspected of wishing to use that power ruthlessly for the exploitation of the Mexican people. But a lot of them have been at the other extreme of life—petty, intriguing, grafting, ignorant and uncultured men, poor specimens of American manhood, or, below them, fugitives from justice, gamblers and procurers, dope fiends and vagrants, the very off-scourings of our civilization. There have been so many of these that the self-respecting American, of decent conduct and capacity, who goes to Mexico, is frequently startled by the exhibition he arouses as an "exception." If we would send more of that sort, and fewer of the others, Mexicans should be less prone than they now are to look down on Americans as an "inferior people." Really, they do exactly that.

THE same is true in other international contacts. Japan understands it perfectly. With a regularity which cannot be accidental, Japanese of culture, charm, distinction and brilliant ability arrive in America, on one errand or another, but most usefully as exhibits of their race. The social contacts between that sort of Japanese and influential Americans are doing more than all the negotiations of diplomats to bring about mutual understanding between the two countries.

THE half-million Americans who go to Europe every year could render the same service on a gigantic scale, and some of them do. It is also an unfortunate but undeniable fact that some of them do not. The ignorant, vulgar, loud, self-assertive American, who knows exactly what he wants and aggressively insists on getting it, and who proclaims everywhere the superiority of America, has by his bad manners given us a quite undeserved reputation, among older peoples who perhaps overvalue manners. Americans, in fact, are not an exceptionally unamiable people. Even those untypical Americans mislabeled "typical" tourists, are not so bad at home. They merely protect themselves abroad by covering their sense of inferiority by an assumption of superiority. And there are more vulgarisms in most countries than in America. But they do not travel so much. If more of our tourists would go about their business with an easy equality; if they would recognize more readily that people can be different without thereby being wrong, they might do, on a scale of hundreds of thousands, some of the service which Lindbergh, in his exceptional way, is doing.

YOUNG Russell Tremain, of Seattle, separated from his parents by a 200 per-cent American court because they belonged to a freak religious sect which would not let him salute the flag, has now been restored to his home by another court, more really and understandingly American, and will therefore have a chance to grow up regarding the American government as his friends instead of his enemy. Is that likely to make any the worse American of him?

THIS was only the most recent of the many examples of a delusion that the best method of "Americanization" is one imitated from the Russification under the Czar, from Teutonization under the Kaiser, and from the present Italianization in the Adige under Mussolini. Even under these autocracies, it never served its purpose, and only succeeded in rendering more hostile the minorities on which it was imposed. In this country it has the added disadvantage of being not merely futile, but un-American also.

TO MAKE a man a good American should be, rather, to make him love freedom by giving him a chance to exercise it; to make him cherish America by giving him a warm welcome into its fellowship; to make him understand American institutions by giving him a part in them; to make him manifest the America, founded by dissenters, to maintain the right of dissent, still welcomes other dissenters. Not a compulsory conformity, but in free adaptation, is true Americanism.
